School Project of King's Daughters Brings Health To Crippled Children

A boon to the work of Miss Rhea King and her assistants at the crippled children's school at the George Washington building is the seamless swimming pool, shown above, installed under the sponsorship of the Whatsoever circle of the King's Daughters. Used for treatment of infantile paralysis, the tank is a memorial to Marcus Dedrick, son of the late Mrs. Alice Dedrick and was made possible through a fund left by her to the sponsoring group.

Left to right in the picture are Mrs. Alwyn H. Crane and Miss Rhea King, teachers, Miss Elizabeth Gustin, physiotherapist, Mrs. J. C. Turner, a member of the crippled children's committee of King's Daughters, Mrs French Crow, president of the Ohio Branch of the King's Daughters, and Mrs. O. M. Young, chairman of the committee. In the tank is Robert Alexander, and on the table is Charles Pirnstill of Bucyrus, Mrs. C. H. Elliott, also a member of the committee, was out of the city when the picture was taken.

Officially Approved

The tank is one of few in Ohio and was installed this spring with the approval of the board of education.

A looked-forward-to event on the day's schedule at the school is the visit of Miss Gustin, who works under the state department of handicapped children. Ten children are treated for the after-effects of infantile paralysis by use of the tank.

Miss Gustin spends a part of Monday, Wednesday and Friday of one week and Tuesday and Thursday of the alternate week at the school. In this way each child is permitted to spend three quarters of an hour in the tank, exercising and being treated.

Days when it isn't "their turn in the tank" they take light exercises and are placed under lights to promote the recovery process.

Thoroughly Enjoyed

The children love their period of exercise in the tank and do exercises under water which are impossible when outside. Going into the water without their braces, they are massaged and treated by Miss Gustin in addition to their swimming exercises. All can remember when, before their illness, they were able to walk, and all are bravely putting up a battle for the restoration of their health.

The circle provides swim suits and towels for each child using the tank and when necessary provide braces, shoes, glasses or other items necessary. They also arrange for operations when necessary.

In his talk last night, Mayor Smith reviewed the activities of various city departments during the 1936-37 administration, touching on city finances, abolishment of the policemen's and firemen's pension systems, and improved conditions at the City hospital and city parks.

GERMANS WARN ROOSEVELT TO AVOID DISASTER

Tell Him To Remember Wilson's "Shipwreck" in Reply to His Chicago Speech.

CLAIM ADDRESS WAS VAGUE

Suggest He Give Names of Aggressive and Defensive Nations Referred to.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 6—The German foreign office issued a warning to President Roosevelt today to "remember the shipwreck" of his predecessor, Woodrow Wilson—commenting on the American President's appeal against aggressors in his Chicago speech yesterday.

Speaking through the official mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, the foreign office inquires sharply which nations Mr. Roosevelt was talking about in his Chicago speech.

"Mr. Roosevelt talked in very general terms about 'the sacredness of treaties' without distinguishing which treaties conform to international morality and which do not," the foreign office organ said.

"He spoke of countries eager to attack and of others which think only of defending themselves, without even here indicating any adequate marks of identification.

"He avoided discussing the role of bolshevism which menaces all states and peoples.

"If the President of the United States sees salvation in union of peaceful nations and frightening off of the bad, then such a proposal can have a practical value only if clarity already has been established as to which are good and which are bad."

Germans, the article continued, cannot be blamed for remembering Woodrow Wilson's efforts to initiate reform of international relationships according to the principle of justice and morality —(through the League of Nations).

Wilson's authority, however, was "insufficient to make even partially effective the peace principles he proclaimed," said the foreign office newspaper.

If again a President of the United States, it continues, "lifts his voice in an attempt to influence—not to say intervene in world, and therefore Europe, affairs—one has the right to expect him to pick up the thread where Wilson dropped it."

"If the President of the United States, however, wants to undertake, in earnest, responsibility for the initiative which really will lead to improvement of conditions, he cannot escape remembering the shipwreck suffered by his predecessor (Wilson) and should be satisfied in his own mind whether, in addition to the determination, he also possesses strength enough actually to make justice triumphant in the world."

Japan Points to Pleas of "Have Nots"

TOKYO, Oct. 6—Japan officially answered President Roosevelt's condemnation of aggressor nations today with a warning that "peace will be difficult to maintain" if the demands of the "have not" nations are refused.

The foreign office spokesman said in reply to the American President's speech at Chicago yesterday that "the ideals of right as conceived by western peoples is compatible to that of the orient."

He added that Japan's demand was that the Japanese people be permitted "to enjoy the freedom of movement and happiness which is rightfully theirs."

EXTRA SESSION QUITE LIKELY

Roosevelt Hints He'll Call Congress in November, but Delays Final Decision.

By The Associated Press

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 6—President Roosevelt strongly indicated today he would call a special session of congress to convene between Nov. 8 and 16, but said he would reserve decision until after conferences in Washington this week.

In a long interview on the front porch of his Dutchess county home, at the end of his cross-country tour, he said it was a little premature to say supreme court reorganization would be included in his program.

It was neither in nor out—was the way he put it.

He placed at the top of his program wages and hours, surplus crop control, government reorganization and regional planning.

Suggests Quarantine

He refused to amplify his Chicago speech in which he suggested a "quarantine" of aggressor nations and called for "concerted" and "positive" action by peaceful nations to restore world stability.

He said he had found very little interest among the people as to methods, when asked about court reform, but a great deal of interest in objectives.

He said he did not want to specify any date for a special session now, but suggested somewhere between Nov. 8 and 16 would give congress time to get most of its spade-word done before the Christmas holidays.

The President said three fourths of the members of congress with whom he talked favored a special session.

At Grand Forks, N. D., he said speed was essential on surplus crop control legislation if 1938 crops were to benefit by the new program.

Finds Crops Better

Asked his impressions of the 8,000 mile transcontinental journey, the President said he found the crop situation infinitely better west of the Mississippi than at any time in the last four years and an overwhelming majority of the farmers wanted surplus control.

After his climactic foreign policy speech and campaign-like parading in Chicago, he looked forward to two days of rest at Hyde Park in the company of his aged mother who has just returned from a long holiday in Europe.

Capital Visit Short

He planned to return to Washington Friday morning, but to go back to Hyde Park a week from today to dedicate a new postoffice at Poughkeepsie.

Although labor and farm legislation topped the immediate objectives outlined on the journey,

7 RUNS SCORED IN SIXTH INNING

By The Associated Press

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 6—A seven-run barrage in the last half of the sixth inning and Lazzeri's home run in the eighth gave the New York Yankees an 8 to 1 victory over the New York Giants in the opening game of the world series here today.

The Yanks' splurge in the sixth sent Carl Hubbell from the mound, following his initial duel of the series against Lefty Gomez. A crowd of 60,000 saw the game including former President Herbert Hoover and Postmaster General James Farley.

First Inning

Giants—Moore started off the series by grounding out to Gehrig. Dick Bartell singled sharply down the third base line for the first hit, but died on first base. Gomez forced Ott to pop weakly to Gehrig and fanned Leiber to end the inning.

Yankees — The Yanks threatened in their half, getting Crosetti as far as second with only one down, but Pitcher Hubbell put down the uprising by forcing Gehrig and Dicky to fly to Centerfielder Hank Leiber. Crosetti had opened up by working Hubbell for a walk and DiMaggio singled into left after Rolfe struck out. Hubbell was worked deliberately, mixing his fast and screw balls with a nice change of pace.

Second Inning

Giants—The Giants went down in order. Ripple broke his bat on a foul ball, then flied out. McCarthy sent a scorcher down toward second which Lazzeri took off his shoetops, and Mancuso lined out to Selkirk. As the Yankees went to bat Blondy Ryan started to warm up in the Giants bull pen.

Yankees—Hubbell put on the brakes, retiring the Yankees in order by forcing Hoag, Selkirk and Lazzeri to ground out. The big pitcher made a nice glove-handed stop of Lazzeri's hot grounder.

Third Inning

Giants—After Crosetti made a neat stop of Whitehead's grounder and tossed him out, Hubbell sent Selkirk back against the right field stands to get his hard drive. Moore grounded out to Gomez, who handled the hard hit ball nicely.

Yankees — After Whitehead threw out Gomez, Crosetti worked Hubbell for a three and two count, drove a long foul that just missed being a base hit, and added two more fouls before flying out to Moore. Moore also took Rolfe's short fly.

Fourth Inning

Giants—Hoag went back deep for Bartell's long fly. Tony Lazzeri grabbed a tricky hopper off Ott's bat back of second to throw him out, then backed up on the grass to take Leiber's pop fly.

Yankees—Facing the Yankees' prize sluggers, DiMaggio and Gehrig, Hubbell forced the centerfielder to ground weakly to Whitehead and fanned the heavy-hitting first baseman. Catcher Bill Dickey grounded out to first.

Fifth Inning

Giants—The Giants broke the scoring ice, Ripple crossing the plate as Mancuso hit into a double play, Lazzeri to Gehrig. McCarthy, who had singled past Lazzeri after Ripple dropped a safe hit into right, also was retired on the play. Whitehead continued the assault on Gomez, lashing a double into right, but Hubbell grounded out to Gehrig unassisted.

Yankees—Hubbell's fast ball tamed the Yankees in their half of the fifth, retiring them in order for the fourth straight time. Hoag flied to Bartell. Selkirk bolsted to Ripple and Lazzeri went down swinging.

Sixth Inning

Giants—Moore dribbled a single through the middle of the diamond, but died on first. Bartell flied to Selkirk, Ott fouled to Dickey who raced in front of the Giants' dugout to make the catch and Leiber flied to Hoag.

Yankees — The Yankees went ahead when Joe DiMaggio cracked a single into left center with the bases loaded. Gomez started it off by drawing a walk, after dropping to the ground to dodge one of Hubbell's fast ones. Crosetti failed on two tries to sacrifice, then singled Gomez to second. Sharp throwing Catcher Mancuso caught the Yankee pitcher off second, but Dick Bartell dropped the ball for the first error of the game. Rolfe, with the count three and two, filled the bases with a looping single to left. After DiMaggio's second hit scored Gomez and Crosetti, Gehrig was passed purposely and Dickey plated Rolfe with a single that Whitehead couldn't handle, again filling the bases. Ott took Hoag's grounder and threw to Mancuso to force

DiMaggio at home. Gehrig and Dickey scored on Selkirk's sharp single to right, which drove Hubbell from the mound. The star southpaw was replaced by right-hander Harry Gumbert after the game had been delayed slightly during a dispute over whether Gumbert or Dick Coffman would pitch. Manager Bill Terry of the Giants had selected Gumbert, then sent Coffman to the mound, only to switch back to Gumbert. Lazzeri's grounder went through Whitehead for the second error of the inning, scoring Hoag. Coffman then replaced Gumbert. Gomez, up for the second time in the inning, again walked. Crosetti made the second out with a short fly to Moore, but Rolfe walked, forcing Selkirk across the plate. DiMaggio flied out to Lieber in deep center to end the inning.

Seventh Inning

Giants—Gomez put the Giants down in order, Ripple flying to Hoag in short left, McCarthy rolling out, Gomez to Gehrig, and Mancuso flying to DiMaggio.

Yankees — Successive walks to Gehrig and Dickey put the Yankees in scoring position again, but Hoag hit into a double play, Ott to Whitehead to McCarthy, after trying twice to sacrifice. Selkirk left Gehring stranded on third by grounding out, Bartell to McCarthy.

Eighth Inning

Giants—Whitehead flied to DiMaggio and Berger, pinch-hitting for Coffman, also hoisted to the center fielder. Moore dropped a Texas league single into left, but Hoag backed up to the left field barrier to take Bartell's drive. Al Smith, a south paw, succeeded Coffman.

Yankees—Lazzeri greeted Smith with a home run into the left field stands. Ripple made a one-handed catch of Gomez' line drive and Crosetti lined to Ott. Rolfe flied out to Moore.

Ninth Inning

Giants—Ott struck out on three pitched balls. Leiber lined to DiMaggio. Ripple drew a walk. McCarthy, with the count three and two, grounded out to Gehrig unassisted.

For a time it appeared the weather would interfere and cause the opener to be postponed but an all night downpour, which turned into a thin drizzle early today stopped at 9 a. m.

The field was a veritable quagmire around home plate, but a large force of workmen who toiled all morning had succeeded in putting the baselines in fairly good condition. The outfield was soggy.

DAVEY TO DELAY SPECIAL SESSION

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—Ohio's special legislature session to consider a poor relief program won't be called for at least another month.

Gov. Martin L. Davey, saying "I think I'll wait until after the election," announced he would not issue the call in October as he intended previously because he had not had enough time to study relief needs. The election is Nov. 2.

Edison, Vernon Gridders Set for "Crucial" Contest

Harding Gridders Drill for Lima Contest Friday

Three hours on the practice field was last night's training menu for Harding High's football squad which is in the midst of preparing a hot reception for the highly-touted Lima South Tigers, booked to invade Marion for a floodlight game Friday. Coach Carl Cramer put the gridders to work on defensive plays designed to cope with Lima's strong running attack.

The Tigers, advance reports indicate, feature a running attack off single wing and punt formations. South's line averages between 155 and 160 pounds, being practically equal in weight with the Presidents line. The Lima team has a pony backfield with a weight average of about 140 pounds.

When the teams meet their destinies will be directed by former college teammates. Marty Varner, the Lima South mentor, was a member of the Ohio State university squad at the same time Coach Carl Cramer was at the height of his collegiate football career. The pilots of both teams will be eager for a victory in what is the first athletic contest between the two schools in recent years.

South's season records includes a 31 to 0 triumph over Pandora, a 25 to 0 win over Lima Shawnee and a 14 to 7 setback by Troy. In the Troy game South outplayed the Trojans but failed to capitalize on scoring chances. Troy made a 70-yard run for the first touchdown and intercepted a pass to score the second on a 96-yard run. These were the only two occasions that a rival team has penetrated beyond Lima's 20-yard line.

While Marion is engaging a non-league opponent, four members of the North Central Ohio scholastic football conference will be active in circuit encounters. Shelby will entertain Ashland and Galion will invade Bucyrus for Friday night games. Mt Vernon, the pre-season favorite to win the current loop championship, will be playing outside the league.

With Mt Vernon's 31 to 6 victory over the Bucyrus Redskins and the 31 to 6 win over Shelby, Marion Harding looms as the only serious contender to dispute the Yellow Jackets' championship hopes. In the only other loop game already played, Galion trounced Ashland, 21 to 0, indicating that little help can be expected in that direction to put the stopper on Mt Vernon.

AMPLIFIER TO BE USED AT STADIUM

Spectators at Friday night's game will be able to keep apace with the action on the field through a play-by-play account to be announced over a public address system. Loudspeakers and amplifying equipment have been leased for Marion's four remaining home games, it was announced by Harding high school officials today. E Paul Huffman, Harding faculty manager, will broadcast the description of the game.

TITLE CHANCES TO FADE FOR LOSER IN THURSDAY CONTEST

Third Round Game in Junior High Loop To Start at 4 P. M.

Grid teams of Thomas A. Edison and Vernon Heights Junior High schools will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Harding High field, in the third game of the city league competition. Both of the teams went down to 12 to 0 defeats in the opening encounters with Central's aggregation and their crucial meeting will have considerable bearing on the selection of the 1937 champions.

Edison, the defending city junior high titlists, had a big share of their hopes blasted last week when the team fell before the veteran Central eleven. The Brickley-coached club will be out to regain a portion of its lost prestige and the teams will take the field on even terms. The game marks the third round of competition and the team which loses tomorrow will be out of the championship race.

Both clubs lost heavily when the bulwarks of their teams of last season moved on to Harding High school. However, Coach J. Eugene Auld at Vernon and Coach Carl E Brickley at Edison, have whipped their available grid material into top-top shape for tomorrow's battle. Central representatives are expected to be on the sidelines eagerly awaiting the outcome to learn which team will offer them the most serious challenge when the second round of the season's schedule begins.

After this week only three more contests remain on the junior high schedule, with Central opposing Edison Oct 14, Vernon meeting Central the following week and Edison and Vernon clashing in the season-ending game. Tomorrow's game will be called promptly at 4 o'clock and admission prices of 10 cents for all school children and 20 cents for adults will be charged.

LITTLE WORLD SERIES WINDUP DUE TONIGHT

Bears Beat Red Birds To Make It Three Victories for Each.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—The surprising Little World Series between the Columbus Red Birds and Newark's Bears was right back where it started today, all even, and more than $4,000 worth of chips were down on the outcome of the seventh and deciding contest tonight.

The Birds, American Association champs, swept the three-game series at Newark, and then the Bears, International loop pennant winners by a 25½-game margin, allowed the Birds a total of two runs in taking the three contests here. In the last three games the Bears outscored the Birds 19 to 2, last night's count being 10 to 1.

The $22,268.50 players' pool, poured into the coffers in the first four games, will be split on a 60-40 basis with the winner taking the heavy end. There's a difference of $4,453.70, and tonight's clash decides who gets the extra bit.

Determined to make it four in a row, after being three down, Manager Oscar Vitt of the Bears nominated Joe Beggs, tall right-hander, to face the Birds tonight. Beggs handed Columbus an 8 to 1 beating Saturday night.

Burt Shotton decided to send Nelson Potter, drafted last night by the Philadelphia Athletics, to the mound.

The Bears took no chances last night, lambasting four Columbus hurlers for 14 hits, including four doubles and a pair of triples.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Larry Grab, 185, Milwaukee, stopped Al George, 185½, Columbus, O., (1).

NEW YORK — Johnny Bellus, 135¾, New Haven, Conn., knocked out Lou Campo, 132¾, New York (1).

So, He Let Them Stay There

This New York policeman took world series "madness" in consideration when he allowed Tony Albano (upper berth) and Pete Russell (lower) to maintain their places as first in line for series tickets at the portals of the Yankee Stadium. There is a long wait until the first game is called.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 — Plenty of deals being cooked up here as the baseball clans gather.... Looks like the biggest winter turnover in years. One choice tidbit is that Cincinnati is out to get Bill McKechnie of the Bees as manager, with Gabby Hartnett and Jimmy Wilson also in the running. Just a question of whether the Reds can bag either of the trio. Reds to rebuild from ground up.... Eleven of this year's team resigned, but none of the others have even been approached.... Latter list includes such big shots as Ernie Lombardi, Gene Schott and Paul Derringer. If they go, who will take their places?

One burned up gent is Phillip K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs. He didn't bother to stay home and root for his team in the city series against the White Sox. Phillip K. can't understand why the Cubs did not come through this year and last, and promises Chicago fans more new faces than they count in 1938. Dodgers topped off another wild season with a wild trade. Baseball men can't feature giving four players, including Bucher and Cooney for Leo Durocher.

Mickey Cochrane, back from Europe and looking very fit, got the glad hand on all sides. So did John A. Heydler, former president of the National League.

Joe Gould, the fight manager, was spotted introducing Joe Di Maggio to Cliff Melton in the lobby of the hotel where all three live. A tire dealer from Wichita, Kans., is here ready to give a brand new set to the first guy smacking out a homer.

Casey Stengel went across the Brooklyn bridge and personally collected the last installment of his salary for not managing the Dodgers. The big eared one has three offers and will do some business in the next two days. He has been hanging around the Yankee offices a lot, and some of the boys think he'll wind up managing either Kansas City or Oakland, both Yankee farms.

Scalpers are asking ten bucks for a $5.50 pasteboard. The keen humor and wit of Will Rogers is sadly missed in the refreshment room where the comedian was a regular until last year.. Extra—it is reported the Boston Bees have drafted a rookie under 30 years of age, but may have to put him out another year for more seasoning. Harry Eisenstat, the ex-Dodger, just declared a free agent, didn't get as far as first when he tried to sell himself to the Boston Red Sox.

Bowling Results

Leser's 268 Single and 629 Three-Game Total Helps Midway Squad Take Honors.

32 PLAY TODAY IN WOMEN'S TOURNEY

By The Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 6—Thirty-two aspirants to the National Women's golf title headed today into two rounds of "sudden death" matches from which only eight can emerge unbeaten.

Only Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., veteran and 1936 finalist, was missing from the list of favorites. She was the first round victim of Mrs. George Brantley of Jacksonville, Fla., who met the medalist, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Greensboro, N. C., today. Mrs. Page eliminated Marian Leachman of Berkeley, Calif., 3 and 2, yesterday.

There was a possibility Marion Miley, highly-rated entrant from Cincinnati, would be unable to continue competition. She defeated Virginia Fox of Hershey, Pa., 6 and 4, yesterday but entered a hospital a few hours later, suffering from a stomach ailment.

Paper clips made of different colored wire and having colored ends in one end have been inserted for classifying papers in business office desks.

OHIO STATE SET TO BID FOR NATIONAL

Victory Over Southern California Would Strengthen Bucks' Chances for Laurels.

By The Associated Press

BY WILLIAM WEEKES

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—The famous "High Street coaches" of Columbus, O., are still holding their collective breath and tongue, but it's going to be hard to restrain them if Ohio State's Buckeyes get by Southern California Saturday in their ballyhooless campaign for national gridiron honors.

The "High Street coaches"—known in other football-daffy centers as downtown coaches and Sunday morning mentors—used to do a large share of their cheering over Buckeye football in advance. Particularly did they cry up the "Scarlet Scourge" elevens of 1935 and 1936, only to see their favorites thwarted in their quest for mythical laurels. Notre Dame did it in that mad last period in 1935. Last year Pittsburgh, Northwestern, and Notre Dame again, squeezed most of the color out of the "Scarlet Scourge."

Pre-Season Silence

This year the pre-season silence at Columbus was almost deafening. The Buckeyes were just another team that probably would win more games than it lost. Even after Ohio State whipped Texas Christian the cheering was restrained. Ohio State, with a bigger team, had just caught a lighter, forward passing team in the rain. Last week the Bucks conquered a fine Purdue eleven without causing any hysterics on High street.

If Ohio State whips the Trojans at Los Angeles this week, the chorus may give tongue. It will be Ohio's last non-conference game, and a victory would rate it no worse than an even chance of getting through the season without a defeat. Northwestern, a week later, would appear to be the last big threat, unless Chicago, Indiana, Illinois, or Michigan should produce an upset.

The Buckeyes took their last home workout yesterday, looking at Trojan plays and polishing their passing game. They were due to leave Columbus this morning, making a stop in Chicago to drill at Stagg Field in the afternoon.

Minnesota Lineup Changed

Bernie Bierman made numerous alterations in his Minnesota lineup, leaving on the first eleven only five men who started in the Nebraska defeat, as preparations went ahead for Indiana. The Hoosiers worked on an offense especially designed for use Saturday. Illinois was given another secret practice session on the surprise Bob Zuppke is preparing for Notre Dame, while the Irish concentrated on forward pass defense.

Northwestern, which opens defense of its conference title against Michigan, was hustled through a long drill on fundamentals. Coach Lynn Waldorf having found plenty to criticize in the Wildcats blocking and tackling against Iowa State last week. The Wolverines also concentrated on fundamentals. Wisconsin and Chicago, which clash at Chicago, engaged in offensive scrimmages.

At Purdue, Mal Elward searched for end replacements his regulars Don Powell and Jim Zachary having suffered injuries in the Ohio State battle which may keep them out of Saturday's game with Carnegie Tech and the Northwestern contest a week later. Coach Irl Tubbs continued to experiment with Iowa's lineup and indicated he would try a variety of combinations against Bradley Tech this week.

Bucks Seek Revenge For 1920 Defeat

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—Ohio State's grid team was California bound today and the 37 squad members hoped that Horace Greeley's advice to "Go west, young man, go west" wouldn't result as disastrously as it did just 17 years ago when the Ohioans made their last jaunt to the coast.

Back in 1920 the Bucks carried an undefeated and untied record into the Rose Bowl. They came out of the bowl with a 28 to 0 defeat tacked on them by California, and they haven't gone back since.

This time Southern California offers the opposition, and the Bucks are confident, since defeating Texas Christian and Purdue, that they'll avenge the West Coast defeat of almost two decades ago.

● For a situation like this we recommend Cooper's Y-Front Underwear. It prevents squirming by giving snug, streamlined fit everywhere—comfortable, buoyant support. No bunching, no binding, no buttons. Men squirm because underwear that's fitted only at the waist "gapes up" on them.
That two-piece Y-Front underwear offers many other advantages. Wears longer because upper or lowers can be replaced separately. Provides extra back protection. Will not bulk or bind. Makes outer clothes fit better. Y-Front is always convenient yet cannot gap. Gives energy-saving support.
Try one suit of this new Y-Front underwear by Cooper's. If he doesn't like it, return it and get your money back. Such is our confidence.
Prices 50c and up per garment—according to fabric and model.

STOCKS EFFECT ERRATIC RALLY

Short Covering Helps Bolster Market After Sharp Break in Opening Trade.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—The stock market rallied irregularly today for net gains of fractions to a point or more after an early sharp break.

Financial circles reported some short covering helped the market brace up and said improvement in commodities had also provided a favorable background for an upswing.

Only steels, under the influence of lower ingot output, failed to develop recuperative energy and in this sector losses of fractions to a point or so ruled around the fourth hour.

Well liked were General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Deere, Western Union, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Chesapeake & Ohio, Union Carbide and Paramount.

Showing little stamina were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, International Harvester, Wheeling Steel, Inland Steel and Howe Sound.

Bonds and commodities rose following early declines. The pound sterling was higher, the French franc about unchanged.

Admitting the influence on sentiment of such forces as strife in the far east and continued fighting in Spain, some analysts scanning the decline in shares since mid-August studied it in terms of business trends instead.

On this score, one of Wall Street's well-known analysts said a substantial explanation of the downswing could be found in the record of business and in corporate earnings. He stressed that if motor output gains momentum shortly, this will brighten the picture.

Action Involving Property Near LaRue Being Heard Before Judge Young.

Trial of the suit of E. E. Stoner against Milton Markey for judgment of $101 for half interest in a 10-acre wheat crop got under way this morning before Judge Hector S. Young in common pleas court. Shortly before noon after three witnesses had been heard, George T. Geran, attorney for Mr. Markey, presented a request for dismissal, claiming there was no cause of action against his client.

The suit is an appeal from a decision of Justice of the Peace C. Rice at LaRue near which village both litigants reside. According to testimony this morning the land in Montgomery township was originally held by Hiram Wygle on a land contract with the Buckeye Building & Loan Co. Later his son Lonnie took over the land contract payments and sub-let the land to Mr. Stoner. In the meantime the younger Wygle defaulted and the loan company sold the land to Mr. Markey.

When Mr. Stoner attempted to harvest his wheat crop he was restrained by Mr. Markey, the new owner. The wheat was valued at $202, Mr. Stoner claiming half interest.

Witnesses relating the circumstances were Lonnie Wygle and Mr. Stoner, Attorney Geran and Paul D. Michel, attorney for Mr. Stoner, were arguing the motion for a dismissal this noon.

Visiting Judge Here

Common Pleas Judge A. V. Baumann of Fremont served in common pleas court here yesterday, ruled in two actions and took four others under advisement. The cases were among those in which Judge Hector S. Young was interested as an attorney before coming to the bench.

Judge Baumann sustained a motion of Harold Beaver of Columbus for quashing of pretended service in the suit filed against him by Dr. William H. Hinklin of Marion in connection with an auto accident in 1934. The case was decided for the defendant here in 1935 the Third district court of appeals reversed the decision and ordered a new trial.

The motion to quash service was sustained on the grounds Beaver was a minor at the time.

Judge Baumann also denied a motion for a new trial and an application to set aside the verdict in the case of Bertha A. Baseler against Ivan Johnson for $3,590 damages. The suit involved an accident here in 1932. A verdict was granted for the defendant. In her application for a new trial the plaintiff stated she had found new evidence.

Taken under advisement were the cases entitled Ballou vs. State of Ohio, Ferryman vs. City of Marion, Carr vs. Masonic Temple Co, and Northrup vs. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Only motions and other minor pleadings in the cases are to be decided.

LEGISLATION DELAYED BY BUCYRUS COUNCIL

Absence of Two Members Causes Lawmakers To Table Two Measures.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Oct. 6—Due to the absence of two city councilmen Tuesday night, several important items of legislation were given first readings and tabled until the next meeting.

Recommendations for the remedy of the city's sewer problem, which has arisen with heavy rains during the past summer which flooded many basements, were contained in a written report from the service director and city engineer. The recommendations were referred to a committee, which was instructed to report at the next meeting on steps to be taken.

An ordinance accepting the offer of the federal government of a grant not to exceed $63,080 for construction of a city sewage disposal plant was delayed after a first reading. The grant, if accepted, will include 45 per cent of the cost of the plant. Specifications provide that the offer be accepted within 12 weeks and that the plant be completed within 15 months after the offer is accepted.

Also tabled after a first reading was an ordinance which provides the advancement of a city patrolman to police captain, the advancement to carry at $10 a month increase in salary. If adopted, the appointment will be made by Safety Director John Dostal.

Maplecrest Home At Bucyrus One of Major Projects of King's Daughters

Convention Delegates Will Go There for Tea Thursday Afternoon

A major project sponsored by the Ohio Branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, Inc., which is holding its annual convention here this week, is Maplecrest, a home for girls at Bucyrus.

Trees form a lovely setting for the house which is a home for girls in every sense of the word. Supported entirely by the more than 3,000 King's Daughters of the state, the girls are provided with all the advantages of culture, education and religious training plus the happy atmosphere of a real home environment.

Planned in 1919 as an all-year round state work, the home was opened Dec 1, 1921, with two little girls. The home is equipped to care for 26 girls and at present has a household of 21. That the ties of the home are strong and lasting is proven by the return, time after time, of young women, who have gone from Maplecrest into their lifework of teaching, nursing, commerce, and other fields of professional and commercial life. One or two of the young women have chosen to return to the home for their weddings and all return for short visits whenever the occasion permits.

Attend Bucyrus Schools

Residents of the home are of school age and attend the Bucyrus public schools. When a girl elects to enter college after her graduation from high school, members of the state King's Daughters find a way to provide the means for the furtherance of her education.

Fruit showers, sewing parties and other beneficent affairs sponsored by the women of the 146 circles in the state aid materially in the upkeep of the home and add numerous comforts and pleasures to the residents, whom are most appreciative. A contribution of $2 annually from each of the women maintains Maplecrest.

A looked-forward-to event this year is the tea Thursday afternoon, when the visitors and delegates will motor to Maplecrest following the formal closing of the convention.

The home functions under the state welfare department and is maintained entirely by the state circles. Girls admitted to the home are usually orphaned and of school age. As a matter of detail the sponsors of the home enroll the residents through the probate courts of the respective counties, but the girls are in no way wards of the court nor have they ever been identified with any court.

Vacation Home

Another project, statewide in scope, is Rock Ledge Inn, a vacation home for working women and women of limited means. Located on Catawba Island, the resort boasts of one of the most delightful beaches on Lake Erie.

Leased by the state organization to the sponsors of a summer home for underprivileged children for the last two years, the state group at this convention will discuss the possibility of resuming the management of the Inn. During her administration as state leader of Junior King's Daughters circles several years ago Mrs. French Crow of Marion, now head of the state branch, presided as acting hostess for a junior camp period at Rock Ledge Inn the last two weeks in June.

Started as a Bible school at Lakeside in 1909, the home was erected and deeded to the state organization in 1914.

Magazine Editor Here for State K. D. Meeting

Any organization interested in raising the ideals and promoting the welfare of humanity has the support of Mrs Lucky Van Kirk of Granville, a newspaper woman of more than half a century, and a member of the board of trustees of the Ohio Branch of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons, Inc. Mrs Van Kirk came to Marion Tuesday to attend the forty-fourth annual convention of the state branch.

Mrs Van Kirk is editor and business manager of the Ohio Messenger, official organ of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. She took over the work of getting out the periodical 26 years ago this fall and plans to retire a little later. Quoting Shakespeare's line about life being a stage, Mrs Van Kirk says she has played her part in this particular drama and will step aside to make way for some one younger and stronger.

"Knowing as little as I did about editing and managing a publication, I marvel at my nerve in accepting the job," she said in discussing her early years as an editor. The job was "laid in her lap" at one of the W. C. T. U. conventions, she explains, after she as a member of the board, had voiced an opinion that the magazine "ought to be self-supporting." The magazine with a circulation of 40,000 at that time, became self-supporting in the first year of Mrs Van Kirk's editorship and today still is self-supporting with its circulation of 25 000.

The Voice a monthly publication is published at Westerville, and Mrs Van Kirk carries on her part of the work from her home in Granville.

Mrs Van Kirk has been active in King's Daughters work for the last quarter of a century, supplementing her church work with the work of the King's Daughters and the W. C. T. U. "The King's Daughters work, I like building Christ's kingdom here on earth," she says. She has served on the board of trustees for the past two years.

Temperance reform is foolish, she believes, if we go on licensing a business that will degrade and disgrace mankind. "It is the province of good government to make it easy for citizens to do right and hard to do wrong," she affirms.

Mrs Van Kirk, whose charming personality makes her a welcome visitor to conventions and gatherings throughout the state, expects to remain throughout the convention. She is a member of the Ohio Newspaperwomen's Association which will convene in Cincinnati, Oct. 29, 30 and 31.

OPINION VARIES ON PEACE TALK

Nations Hinted at by Roosevelt Resent Implications While Others Cheer.

By The Associated Press

A world fearful of widespread war looked today upon President Roosevelt's intimation that the United States is prepared to take active steps for peace both as a menace and a benefaction.

Germany and Japan uttered adverse criticism.

The two capital, Madrid and Nanking, that are fighting enemies on opposite sides of the world viewed the President's words as threats to their foes.

The Socialist newspapers of Valencia, seat of the Spanish government, rang with praise for "this mighty opinion" and rejoiced at the weight they expected it would carry in Geneva.

Madrid Flashes Speech

Mr. Roosevelt's entire speech was spread on the front pages of Madrid newspapers without comment but with the headlines, "Americans want peace: Roosevelt energetically condemns policy of invasion and Fascist blackmail"; "Roosevelt accuses provocative nations."

In Nanking, a spokesman for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government declared the speech was "gratifying to China as evidence that America is emerging from isolationism and neutrality."

"Especially welcome," he said, "is Mr. Roosevelt's implied condemnation of Japan when he said 'without warning or justification civilians are being ruthlessly murdered.'"

In Vienna, such headlines as "Roosevelt declares war on war" were typical of the reaction. While editors awaited some hint of the Austrian government's attitude, the publication "Die Stunde" observed:

"Roosevelt has given up the American policy of isolation and stands now beside 90 per cent of the world's population which longs for peace and opposes treaty violation and irresponsible yielding to reckless instincts."

Comfort to Small States

A spokesman for the chancellery said "A strong declaration for observing international obligations, coming from such a powerful source, is a great comfort to small states."

La Prensa, in Buenos Aires, said the President found it indispensable, in "front of international anarchy," to state the peaceable determination of the United States.

In Geneva, League of Nations statesmen regarded the league's condemnation of Japan for invading China as strengthened by President Roosevelt's declaration.

A French government spokesman in Paris characterized the Roosevelt speech as marking the "real entry of the great moral force of the United States into the world's troubled affairs."

ance policy valued at $1, and $18.05 in credits from banks.

Mr. Inzes also operated the Lincoln hotel on West Center street for several years.

Written in Hospital

He died July 21, 1937, and his will, written in City hospital, was dated in June this year. He was unmarried. His will follows: "In this my last will and testament I hereby bequeath all my physical possessions, buildings and property and everything to Leon Bomas." The will was witnessed by Clara Jane Light, nurse at the hospital, Mayor Frederick C. Smith, and his son, Dr. Frederick G. Smith.

Mr. Bomas, who is chef at Hotel Harding, is not related to Mr. Inzes other than by a distant marriage connection, according to his attorneys, Guthery & Guthery.

He was confined to bed for several days when infection set in the wound caused by a corn cutting knife.

BUCYRUS, Oct. 6—Mrs Mary Ellen Hise, 49, wife of Ross Hise, Bucyrus chiropractor, died at the home of her sister, Miss Josephine Clark at Buckhannon, W Va., Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. following an illness of more than a year.

ROOSEVELT GETS GERMAN WARNING

exclusion law passed by the United States in 1924, the spokesman characterized it as "one which is against the natural laws of mankind and is greatly deplored by the Japanese people."

"Japan's population has doubled during the past 50 years. Being crammed in such a limited area, Japan wants to send her people elsewhere but all outlets are denied by countries everywhere."

While the spokesman denied that Japan was making any demand as a "have not" nation, he asserted:

"We hear of late a heated argument on the question of unequal distribution of resources between the have and the have not countries.

"If the haves refuse to concede to the rightful demands of the have nots peace will be difficult to maintain."

At the same time one of Japan's great naval officials declared flatly.

"We can not stay our hands out of respect for a world opinion formed on the basis of dispatches rewritten by Chinese governmental officials. We believe the surest way to minimize suffering is to speed the conclusion. We will do everything possible to speed the end and bring the situation back to normal."

The Japanese comment was based on the obvious assumption that President Roosevelt's attack on aggressor nations was aimed, in part, at Japan's undeclared war against China.

The foreign office spokesman openly raised the question of Mr. Roosevelt's having "the present Sino-Japanese affair" in mind and emphasized that in that case his remarks were "equally applicable."

"The world has been created for mankind," he said, "and, therefore, all honest and industrious people have the right to live anywhere in pursuit of life, liberty and happiness.

"But when, on the one hand, there is a group of people living in happiness with amassed fortunes and, on the other, there is a group of people being denied such happiness, you have the Chinese maxim: 'when things are unbalanced the noise of friction arises'."

Britain Seeks Plan To Curb War

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 6—Britain's ministers today weighed emergency measures to curb the growing danger of world war on either side of the earth, with President Roosevelt's call for action against military aggression interpreted as inviting British cooperation in the far east.

Sentiment plainly was opposed to the possibility of a lone-handed fight against Japanese militarism but informed persons believed the cabinet, with United States assistance, might adopt a sterner attitude in the Sino-Japanese war.

What the cabinet sought was a magic formula to quarantine the twin "contagions" of war—as Mr. Roosevelt put it in his Chicago address—both in European Spain and on the Asiatic continent.

Mr. Roosevelt's virtual termination of the United States' policy of diplomatic isolation marked the possible turning point, British observers believed.

Premier Mussolini's bold, new aerial intervention in Spain, through a force of ace aerial bombers including his second son, and reports that the Italian Black Arrow brigade had reappeared in the northeastern Spanish fighting presented a grave threat to British and French efforts to localize Spain's war.

Spanish government scouts reported papers found on insurgent dead on an upper Aragon battlefield indicated that all of a large column barely thrown back by government forces were Italian soldiers.

They were said to be of the Black Arrow brigade that helped Generalissimo Francisco Franco capture Santander several weeks ago.

They had been brought from northwest Spain into the struggle for strategic areas along France's Spanish frontier through which arms and foreign reinforcements for the Valencia government would stream if the non-intervention control of the border were relinquished.

The scouts said the men were fighting with Italian equipment.

At the same time the cabinet had before it the implications of a pronouncement in Mussolini's Milan newspaper that the world was going Fascist, with pointed references to the orient and South America, and a renewal of pirate submarine activity in the Mediterranean.

EPISCOPALS TOLD OF SOCIAL DUTIES

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6—The church's role in the social order where "men and women fight for their very bread" was thrust upon the thousands of delegates at the opening of the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church here today.

Preaching before communicants from over the world in ceremonial pageantry, Rt. Rev. Edward L. Parsons, bishop of California, pleaded for "intelligent sympathy and understanding of the problems which beset us today."

"There is not much chance," he observed, "of touching the men and women and children fighting for their very bread in the Kentucky coal fields with the message that God is love.

"We shall not say 'these people must be curbed and disciplined and put in their places.' We shall look upon this seething world and remember the master's words: 'The meek that is, the downtrodden and underprivileged—shall inherit the earth'," he said.

ROOSEVELT HINTS AT EXTRA SESSION

the President also talked of:

1. A balanced budget by the next fiscal year starting July 1, 1938.

2. Continued programs to irrigate dry areas and transfer poor land farmers to more productive regions.

3. Wider distribution of control of industry.

4. Less federal spending.

5. A more prosperous agriculture.

6. Widest possible distribution of hydro-electric power at cheap rates.

7. Fewer over-sized cities and more smaller towns.

Next Move Awaited

Speculation as to his next move in a world situation he described as fraught with "international anarchy and instability" overshadowed all else on the last night on his special train as it sped across Ohio and northern New York.

In Chicago, in an address assistants said had been long in preparation, he proposed a "concert" of all peace-loving nations to take "positive" steps to end what he regarded as a threat to world peace.

Whether he was thinking of economic sanctions or some move to isolate the militaristic "disease" he did not say, but the implications were pronounced when, interpolating a "mark you well" in his prepared address, he said:

"When an epidemic of physical disease starts to spread, the community approves and joins in a quarantine of the patients in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease."

MUSKINGUM LANDS TURNED OVER TO U.S.

By The Associated Press

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Oct. 6—Directors of the Muskingum conservancy district disclosed today that they were transferring title to some of the vast project's lands to the federal government in return for a $1,600,000 grant to relieve private property owners of part of their assessment burden.

They added that it was understood the transfer of title was only temporary, with a congressional act returning the property to be proposed in the future.

The exchange was decided upon when the federal comptroller general ruled that the money, from the army engineers' appropriation, could not be given to the district outright.

The truck, driven by Harold Mullen of Cincinnati, hit and demolished the Guthery car and swerved into two parked automobiles owned by William A. Ludwick of Marion route 4 and Milton Bucher of Nevada.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $250. No one was injured.

CHINESE ENVOY ASKS BOYCOTT OF JAPAN

Urges U. S. To Bar Goods and Prove 'That Might Is Not Right.'

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6—Dr. Alfred Sze, former Chinese ambassador to Washington, in a broadcast to the United States today urged an American boycott of Japan to aid China in the undeclared Sino-Japanese war.

"If you boycott Japan," Dr. Sze said, "you will find you have contributed to the greatest single step of progress in history. You will prove that might is not right unless that might is backed by right."

Speaking on behalf of the American colony, Rev. Emory Luccock of Wooster, O., pastor of the American Community church, eulogized President Roosevelt's Chicago speech against aggressor nations. He condemned peace societies in the United States which he said betrayed their cause by playing into the hands of the most reactionary isolationists.

"We do not want the United States to go to war but unless it takes more positive and firm measures to preserve peace it will be forced into war," he said.

Work of Junior Circles Shown At K. D. Meeting

Attracting no small amount of attention at the annual convention of the Ohio Branch of the King's Daughters and Sons, Inc., in session at the First Presbyterian church, is the display of Junior work and projects, a new feature this year.

One of the parlors is devoted to the exhibition which includes posters, pottery work, pictures and scrapbooks done by the junior members who attended the two weeks' camping season at Rock Ledge Inn, the King's Daughters vacation home on Catawba Island. In one of the larger parlors are shadow boxes with miniatures on Rock Ledge Inn, Maplecrest, the King's Daughters home for girls at Bucyrus, and the swimming tank installed this year at the crippled children's school in the George Warrington building in Marion, under the auspices of the Whatsoever circle of Marion.

Mrs. F. A. Rice of Cleveland is state chairman of the junior work. There have been more junior circles promoted to senior circles during the last year than in a number of years previous, she said in discussing her work. The junior camp conducted at Rock Ledge Inn for two weeks in June each year is the principal activity of the junior work.

Junior circles are made up of girls from 12 to 18 years of age Mrs Rice explained in discussing her work. After reaching the age of 18, providing the young women remain in the circle, they become a senior circle.

She offers as a challenge to the adult groups the giving of more of their time and talents in the interest of the formation of junior groups. "There would be more junior circles if the senior groups were willing to give of themselves, their time and talents to guiding these young people in the development of spiritual life and the stimulation of Christian activities, which is the object of the order," she stated.

A.F.L. UNION WANTS U. S. CARE FOR SICK

By The Associated Press

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 6—Federal care of the sick as part of the social security program was asked by the Brotherhood of Painters in a resolution prepared for introduction today at the American Federation of Labor convention.

Federation economists said a study of medical costs for families with incomes between $1,200 and $2,000 a year showed 218 of 1,000 families spent more than $100 for doctors' bills.

"Practically no family with an income of less than $5,000 could bear the costs of a major illness without undergoing hardships," a report of these economists said.

They pointed out one of two methods for removing these "hardships" could be adopted:

(1) Health insurance, with employers, employes or government (or all three) paying the premiums. This insurance would pay benefits during illness.

(2) Placing all hospitals, clinics and dispensaries in the government's hands, with all physicians and surgeons on the government payroll.

UNIVERSITIES TO SIFT HIGHWAY CHARGES

governor," Gov. Davey said. "In other words, he wanted me to probe him to withdraw."

Says Appeal Declined

Gov. Davey said he declined Ferguson's proposition "as a matter of principle and as a matter of logic."

The governor said he had not yet been advised by the three universities whom they would send to make the investigation and that he did not know what their services would cost, but that they would be paid by the highway department.

"No one," the governor said, "can honestly question the sincerity and impartiality of this board of inquiry. It was set up on a basis to inspire and merit public confidence. I am determined to go all the way in this investigation, so that I and the people of Ohio may know the full, unrestrained and unembellished truth."

Of the proposed inquiry by the Franklin county prosecutor, the governor declared "wild rumors and misstatements of fact will have to disappear from the scene, because each witness will be under oath and will have to be able to prove the truth of his allegation or the merit of his own position."

Sees Wholesome Result

"The results cannot fail to be wholesome," he said of the double investigation. "I have a jealous regard for the integrity of the state government. It is only fair that the people reserve judgment until the end of the proceedings."

In Ferguson's letter to the director yesterday, he said:

"We propose to investigate thoroughly every existing contract and every future contract for either construction or maintenance of roads or the purchase of supplies and equipment."

Ferguson started an investigation of department expenditures last spring, but it was curtailed by the governor's veto of funds for examiners. In referring to charges against the highway department in his letter, the auditor said:

"The governor of Ohio who, in my opinion, is as familiar with everything that goes on in the highway department as is Francis Poulson (Democratic state chairman) or any of his henchmen, very cunningly laid the blame into your lap."

Wants a Change

Asserting it is "regrettable" that such conditions exist in a state department, Ferguson said:

"I, as auditor of the state of Ohio, hereby assert that these conditions must cease."

Ferguson urged Jaster to reorganize the department "in such a way as to regain public confidence."

The auditor told Jaster he felt the highway director had not been permitted a free hand in operating his department, adding:

"Personally, I believe you to be a man of honesty and that you have been made a victim of circumstances in that you have not had complete control of your department as any highway director should have."

Inauguration Start of Present Fight

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—The dispute between politically-astute Gov. Martin L. Davey and the watchdog of state expenses, Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson dates back to the auditor's inauguration last January.

Ferguson was leader in a movement for an inauguration of other newly elected state officials separate from that of the governor. While Davey received the oath of office for a second term in the executive chambers, Ferguson and the other officials were inducted in ceremonies in the state house rotunda.

Privately state house observers expressed belief that Ferguson and some of the others feared if they were inaugurated with Davey their debut as state officials would be overshadowed by ceremonies for the governor.

After Ferguson yesterday held up payment of highway department contract vouchers, the surgeon Davey's declaration "I dislike to speak disparagingly of another public official, but I have endured this little man's assaults and insinuations in silence long enough," brought to a head Ferguson's sniping at the state administration.

Six weeks after he took office Ferguson dispatched a staff of examiners to the liquor department with the announced purpose of uncovering graft. So far he has made no report on the inquiry, but he said recently that it still was in progress.

Then he launched investigations of the highway department and the civil service commission.

Davey replied to each move with the comment: "I will welcome any inquiry by a competent authority."

The purchase of a new automobile for Gov. Davey with national guard funds came next under Ferguson's fire. Davey says has the car in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the state's military forces.

Gov. Davey topped off the latest dispute brought about by Ferguson's order holding up the highway department payments with the assertion:

"It would be very refreshing if Mr. Ferguson would stop his childish and revengeful antics, and for just once produce some results."

Organized in 1886

The organization was born in 1886 in Mrs. Bottome's home in New York City. Mrs. Bottome was chosen president, Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson, secretary, and Miss Hammersley, secretary. The name King's Daughters was chosen and the badge selected for the order was a little silver Maltese cross. For those who could not procure a silver cross, a purple ribbon was recognized as an emblem of membership.

The chosen motto, "Look up and not down, look forward and not back, look out and not in, and lend a hand, represents the attributes of faith, home and altruistic service." The watchword chosen was "In His Name" and the text "Not to be ministerd unto, but to minister."

The Ohio branch was organized in April 1886, in Newark, three months after the order was founded in New York City. Miss Jeannette Shields was the first leader and the circle was made up of 10 young women who called themselves the Whatsoever circle. Some of the original members were Grace Jones, Margaret and Bessie Felix, Alice Ashbrook, Mattie Brady, Ella Hamilton, Lillian Garber, Nannie Vance, Bertha Dill and Winifred Owen. The earliest work of the circle was serving the needs of the sick. The members rolled bandages for doctors under the direction of a trained nurse and sometimes employed nurses. Later many public charities were under its supervision.

Other Circles Formed

In the year 1887 and 1888 circles were organized at Ashtabula, Wellington, Cleveland, Berea, Marysville, Wooster, Medina and Cincinnati.

In 1889 circles were organized in Akron, Urbana and Toledo, and the same year the first annual meeting of the 71 circles in Cleveland was held and the "city union" was born. At that meeting the number of members in Ohio was reported to be from 700 to 1,000.

Ohio was organized into a branch in May 1893, at Columbus, with Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson and Mrs. Isabella Charles Davis of the central council, as sponsors. At this time the state had 150 circles and a membership of 2,400. There are now 3,333 members and 146 circles in the state. The first Ohio convention was held in Toledo in 1894.

On Oct. 9, 1897, the Whatsoever circle of Newark operated for one day the electric street railway between that city and Granville. The young women, in shirt-waist uniform with large crosses for conductors' badges, acted as conductors and motormen. As a result of the day's work the circle netted $174.65.

At the convention in 1896 in Cleveland, three college circles reported. They were from Granville, Delaware and Columbus. Also at this convention eight boys in uniform called "the Boys' Brigade," acted as pages and ushers.

President 12 Years

Mrs. Sara F. Gugle of Toledo became president at the state convention in Fremont in 1910 and served for 12 years. Succeeding her were Mrs. W. B. Christy, who had been assistant president, Mrs. W. D. Fulton of Columbus and Mrs. Laura S. Goodhue of Cleveland.

Before Ohio had a definite state work in Maplecrest, the home for girls at Bucyrus, Rock Ledge Inn, a women's vacation home on Catawba Island and the Sophie Waldron fund which provides for aged women in a comfortable home, the circles were carrying on many and varied activities.

As early as 1897 the Silver Cross circle of Steubenville, rented a large house and equipped it for a hospital; the circles of Toledo started the district nurse work, the Opportunity circle of Utica maintained a public library, and in many of the smaller cities all the charity work is managed and controlled by the circles.

In Marion the circles have for years maintained a ward in the City hospital where to date more than 250 cases have been hospitalized and with the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs and the P.-T. A. sponsor the free dispensary at the hospital. Pioneer work included the establishment of soup kitchens for underprivileged children in several of the city's schools, providing clothing and bedding for the city's needy and carrying on a program of individual welfare work in the city's less fortunate families.

BUS, TRUCK COLLIDE SOUTH OF GALION

Special to The Star

GALION, Oct. 6—A southbound Greyhound bus and a MacLaine truck collided south of Galion around 3 a. m. Tuesday. Windows in the front part of the bus were broken, making it necessary to send to Lima for another bus. No passengers were injured, but they were transferred to the other bus. The accident occurred on a hill near the H. E. Erickson farm only a short distance south of Galion. It was believed that the slippery condition of the roads caused the accident.

Smallest King's Daughters Group One of Most Active

A past president here for the forty-fourth annual convention of the Ohio branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, Inc., is Miss Amanda Bond of Port Clinton, a pioneer worker in the organization.

Miss Bond presented one of the most unique reports in yesterday afternoon's session when county presidents and city union leaders reviewed the year's work before the more than 200 delegates and visitors.

Gives Unique Report

As secretary of Ottawa county, Miss Bond reported for the smallest organization carrying on the King's Daughters work, a group of four persons living at Rock Ledge, near Port Clinton. The group is composed of Miss Bond, her cousin Alice Sturges, who is with her at the convention, and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Todd of Lakeside.

In addition to being actively interested in the state work of the King's Daughters the quartet is vitally interested in Rock Ledge Inn, the King's Daughters vacation home for working girls and women on Catawba Island, which adjoins the home of Misses Bond and Sturges, and of which Miss Bond is one of the founders. Miss Bond served as president of the state branch for two years, 1903 and 1904. In 1905 the state organization inaugurated what was known as the Summer school. It was held in a chapel at Lakeside with Miss Bond as dean.

Later it was incorporated as "The Summer School association" and in 1909 it occupied its own property known as the Rock Ledge Inn. The lot on which the inn stands was donated by a person interested in the King's Daughters work, and the organization purchased small plots adjoining it. The lovely three-story home was built by the state organization. The top floor is a dormatory and has sleeping rooms on the second floor. The first floor is made up of parlors and other living quarters. For the last two years the building has been leased to the Luella Cummings Home of Toledo for summer use.

Miss Bond joined the King's Daughters in Toledo, affiliating with the Boys' Home circle. She was active in the early work of the organization in that city when providing a city nurse, caring for the sick and less fortunate families and similar activities were a major part of the work.

FARMERS INQUIRE ABOUT AID UNDER TENANCY ACT

Funds Not Available Yet, Federal Supervisor for Marion and Crawford Counties Reports.

Marion county's tenant farmers, some 650 of them, will not be able to take advantage of the recent Bankhead-Jones tenancy act for some time, according to information received by E. C. Sleeth, federal rehabilitation supervisor for Marion and Crawford counties.

He said he has received several inquiries from farmers of both counties under his jurisdiction regarding the new federal measure, but he is unable to assist the public as yet because no arrangements have been made for distribution.

He has been advised, however, that although allotments have not been made in states and counties funds will be available as soon as provided at the next session of congress here for the return action for the remainder of the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1938 congress appropriated $10,000,000.

Benefits Limited

He points out that this is a comparatively small amount in comparison with the number of tenant farmers in the country, and that only a few farmers can hope to purchase land with these funds in the immediate future. An increase of $25,000,000 is provided for the next fiscal year and $50,000,000 for each succeeding year thereafter, he said.

Farmers committees will be set up in each county and district in which loans are to be made and arrangements will be completed for determining places where applications may be filed, Mr. Sleeth said.

A. L. Sorenson, state director of the farm security administration, has informed Mr. Sleeth that the administration is concentrating at present on activities of the farm program now in effect. This includes rural rehabilitation loans for purchase of chattels, adjustment of farm debts and completion of resettlement administration projects in the Marion-Crawford district there has been considerable activity in loans for chattels and purchase of live stock equipment, but no resettlement projects have been established, Mr. Sleeth said.

Operating Loans Helpful

Mr. Sleeth believed that the section of the Bankhead-Jones act which provides for operating loans similar to the present rehabilitation loans now being made here will offer the greatest immediate benefit to eligible farmers here.

V. A. Dirke of Upper Sandusky, director for Wyandot and Hancock counties, has issued similar advice concerning the act to farmers in his district.

The government's program, according to recent Associated Press reports, is directed to aid farmers who have no land or those who are in dire straits and are in danger of losing what little interest they may have in their farms.

Of the 2,005 farms in Marion county, 647 are operated by tenants, 1,008 are operated by the man who owns them, hired managers run 204 and part-owners run the remaining 398.

Of the 261,760 acres of farm land in the county, 242,530 is listed as tillable land. Of this 84,098 is fully owned by the operators, 71,449 acres are partly owned by workers, 922 acres are managed by hired men and 86,061 or 35 per cent is tenant land.

FELT LIKE LUMP IN MY THROAT

Everything Seemed to Disagree With Stomach, Was Bloated With Gas, Burned Like Fire. Says Vendol Relieved Constipation and Other Troubles Disappeared.

"Right after every meal, it felt like a lump came up in my throat which I could neither swallow nor throw out," said Mr. C. P. Barker, well-known citizen of Leavittsburg, Ohio.

MR. C. P. BARKER

"There was a burning and hurting in my stomach and I would feel bloated with gas. A hot, sour liquid containing bits of food would rise up and almost choke me. The gas pressed around my heart so bad that it palpitated and scared me. I was very uncomfortable most all the time.

"In addition, I was so nervous I couldn't sleep well and often had nervous headaches. I arose every morning feeling tired and depressed with no energy to go about my work.

"I began taking Vendol and the first thing it did was relieve my constipation then all my other troubles just gradually went away.

"Now, I enjoy my meals, never having indigestion, gas, sour stomach, palpitation or lump in my throat. My nerves calmed down so that I enjoy sound, restful sleep and awake without a headache, dizzy feeling or coated tongue and enjoy my breakfast, then to my work feeling fresh, happy and full of energy. I advise everyone to take a few bottles of Vendol."

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madre Is Fearful of Katie's Attitude Toward Olina.

"IT'S VERY simple, knowing your mother," I said when Dicky had urged that I tell him my scheme for breaking the plan for sanctuary at the farm to Mother Graham.

"You know how thrilled Mother is at any hint of melodrama," I said, "and how she loves to be in the thick of things when there's any mystery on foot. I thought I'd tell her of the missing emeralds, as well as the royal jewels and treasure which Queen Olga had beneath her castle before she was forced to flee. Then I'd ask her to think up some way of getting them back."

Dicky sprang up from the hammock, and bowed low, flourishing an imaginary hat.

"Lady, take all my hats—when I locate them," he said. "You've hit on the one thing which will make her approve the scheme, welcome Olga and Olina with open arms, and keep her purring for weeks. I'll bet she'll be too busy charting out plans even to bedevil Katie."

"Katie's going to be more of a problem," I said. "Her peasant heritage will give her an awe of royalty and a thrill at having them in the house which may carry them through. But she does not like Olina."

"Because of Noel and Mary?"

"Yes. She adores Mary, and while she doesn't think Noel good enough for her—I think our Katie rather favored the romantic Georges—yet she has always been bitter against 'dot Olina princess' for 'trying to cop heem oudt.'"

Dicky whistled softly.

"You are going to have a problem in that direction. Have you any plan for solving it?"

"Yes-es, I have," I said, "but—"

"But you're afraid I may think it's all wet?" he said, laughing. "I probably shall, but tell me, anyway. I'll promise to behave."

"The only objection to it," I said "is that I shall have to tell Katie the real reason why I'm offering shelter to Queen Olga and Olina."

"The real reason, my sweetheart," Dicky said didactically, "is because you're the world's kindest, most generous and most impractical gal. But I love you for it. And I can see your point about Katie. If she thinks she's keeping Olina away from Noel, and saving Mary unhappiness, she'll work her fingers to the traditional bone.

"But will she be able to keep her mouth shut, especially if Olina should rub her the wrong way? Olina hasn't the poise and tact of her mother, you know, and she's very apt to do something which will rile our Katie."

"I think I can manage that," I said confidently. "I'll swear her to secrecy with all the frightening oaths I can muster. And Katie never gets so temperamental that she forgets what she calls 'my swear.'"

Dicky Is Dubious

"It may work," Dicky said a bit dubiously, "but I don't see that you have any alternative. It would be pretty bad to have Katie getting temperamental with Olina on Mary's account, and your scheme may stop it. But, to oblivion with all of them, I want to know something else more important. Won't you reconsider your decision not to let me know what was in that letter Ede wrote you?"

I wondered a little dreadfully, if I had to go all over that discussion again.

"I'm sorry, Dicky, but I can't. I honestly can't. I'm honor bound not to."

"You mean that hellcat's managed to make you think you are," he said. "But there's one thing certain. You're not going to deal with her by yourself."

"Look here! I'll be willing to make a bet Ede only bound you to secrecy where I was concerned. She didn't tell you specifically not to tell Lil, now did she?"

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Orderly Routine.

Recently I told you about the importance of routine training for the infant and growing child. Today I want to tell you about "nervousness" in children. This is a condition which often follows a lack of orderly routine in the daily care of the child.

In most instances nervousness in a youngster can be traced to the inheritage of a nervous constitution from one of the parents. Of course, this does not mean that the child of a nervous parent must necessarily grow up to be a nervous individual. But if there is any sign of nervousness in the family, it is important that certain safety measures be taken during early life in order to guard against this condition.

During the first year of the child's life the infant should be given frequent opportunity for rest and relaxation. The parent must make certain the youngster has that nourishment so essential to the proper growth and development of a strong and sturdy body. Bear in mind that during the first year the brain grows as much as it does through the rest of life. Neglect during this period is detrimental to the future welfare of the child.

Anemia, disturbances of digestion, faulty diet and underweight are other factors which frequently lead to nervousness. Many children suffer from nervousness for the one reason that they do not obtain the necessary amount of sleep. It may be the result of faulty habits, or of sleeping in poorly ventilated rooms with exposure to disturbing noises.

It is vitally important to remember that all infants and young children require an abundance of quiet and rest. They must have this in order to insure the normal growth and development of the brain. This is possible only if the child lives in peaceful surroundings and calmness of spirit.

If an infant is extremely nervous, it is important that it be left alone as much as possible. The grownups of the family should not be permitted to play with or tease the child. Above all else, I beg of you not to attempt to quiet the nervous youngster by giving soothing syrups or using "pacifiers."

If the child is unusually restless, irritable and nervous, it is well to consult the doctor. Determine the underlying cause of the trouble and follow the instructions outlined by your physician.

At regular times the child ought to receive a thorough physical examination. The weight should be checked at definite intervals. If there is no gain in weight, it may be due to faulty diet or lack of adequate rest. The diet should be simple but nutritious and contain the necessary minerals and vitamins essential to the normal growth and development.

Weather Records Rank September About Average

September weather, with its light frost and cold nights, was a fraction of a degree under the average for the month in a long period of years, records of Observer E. H. Raffensperger show.

Last month's temperatures averaged 64.53 degrees, .37 of a degree under the statistical average of 65.3. A light frost was reported on Sept. 17, but Observer Raffensperger said it was "just enough to be noticeable."

Records show that killing frosts generally come in October, around the tenth. The earliest killing frost on record in Marion came on Sept. 14, 1902.

The maximum temperature recorded here last month was 93, considerably under the maximums of 100 degrees set in 1899 and 1908. Readings in the high 90's are not uncommon in Marion in September, according to the records.

Minimum readings in the low 30's are common, the lowest being 29 in 1913. Last month's low was 38 degrees.

Rainfall for the month measured 3.50 inches, nearly half an inch above the average of 3.05. The heaviest rainfall, 2.20 inches, was on the 15th, following light rains on the second, third and fourth of the month.

More than half of the days, 16, according to records, were in clear from sunrise to sunset, eight were partly cloudy and six were cloudy.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS CONVENTION REPORT

D. M. Young Sees Meeting in France As Aid To Cause of Peace.

Declaring that the convention of Rotary International, held in June at Nice, France, will have a salutary effect upon nations of the world and tend to promote the cause of peace, was voiced by Dr. D. M. Young, Marion delegate to the convention in giving his report to the club here yesterday. Dr. Young spoke at the weekly luncheon meeting of the club at the Harding hotel, accompanying his talk with motion pictures taken during the course of his stay in France.

In expressing his belief that the spirit of the meeting would "take root in countries where war threatens," he called attention to the theme of the sessions, "International understanding and good will" which predominated in all speeches and discussions.

The outstanding action of the convention, Dr. Young reported, was authorization of a campaign to raise a $2,000,000 fund as a Rotary foundation for promotion of international understanding. It will be subscribed beginning Jan. 1, 1938 and will be used in the work of special committees named in the various countries.

There were 6,000 Rotarians representing 85 countries at the convention, with delegates from 3,291 clubs. The delegates were divided into groups according to their business and professional classifications and Dr. Young was secretary of the dentists' division.

Eight Years To Learn.

IF EXPERIENCE is the best teacher, then Americans, being good pupils, should have learned some thing about their national economy.

It has been eight years since this country began to spur its sagging prosperity. It tried hope first. When that wasn't enough, it tried credit. But credit hasn't been enough either.

Prosperity still lags.

The inference to be drawn—the inference that is being drawn—is encouraging. It is that the national economy must be given food, not shots in the arm. It needs meat and potatoes not stimulants.

Constructive critics are proposing closer attention to the fundamental elements of the capitalistic system. Before there can be a more abundant life there must be more abundance, is their conclusion.

They point out that production today still is short of the level which produced prosperity before the depression. This proves, they argue, that until production is raised to a much higher level there can not be a recurrence of prosperity, because the poulation has increased.

The solution is expansion. The problem is to make expansion possible. This will be done when and if potential purchasers of durable goods (expansion materials) become actual buyers. That is the important way to create employment and buying power.

This means there must be assurance of stability to make long range commitments feasible. Railroads, for instance, must be enabled to buy the heavy, expensive equipment they need in order to enlarge their usefulness. Industries must be shown how they can safely increase their production capacity. Potential home builders must be convinced it is practical for them to incur financial obligations.

These are the meat and potatoes of real prosperity. In various ways the national economy is being deprived of its basic nourishment. Eight years after the beginning of the depression and five years after its climax, real prosperity is still around the corner.

The national economy must be looked at as a reality, not as a set of suppositions. Just because the horse quit pulling the cart eight years ago is no reason for trying to put the harness on the cart.

One Big Agreement.

WITH a nationwide strike threatened, the country's leading railroads and the railway brotherhoods have reached a wage compromise. Negotiations covered many weeks. There was more drudgery than excitement.

It was the right atmosphere for every wage conference, but the method is more important than the atmosphere.

Railroads and the coal industry, the latter's workmen controlled by John L. Lewis, must make one big agreement, instead of numerous small ones, when they negotiate with their employes today. As is well known, Mr. Lewis hopes some day to make this the rule in other fundamental industries, like steel, rubber and automobiles.

The idea is simple: Make it impossible for any part of an industry to operate unless an agreement has been reached by the whole industry with the union representing its employes. A nationwide strike then becomes the alternative to compliance with the union's demands. It is the theory of the general strike applied to one important industry at a time, instead of to all important industries simultaneously.

It gives labor tremendous power and compensates employers partially by eliminating wage rates as a factor in competitive operation.

As usual, the consumer, is Mr. Goat. Until he and his gang learn how to strike from coast to coast unless their price is met, the advantages of mass collective bargaining will continue to elude them.

Potato Hill.

THERE'S no reason to mourn over Ed Howe's death, because he was as near to ready for it as a man can be, and it came just the way he wanted it to. At 84, a man doesn't expect to live forever, anyway.

Whatever tears can be spared should be shed because among all the millions who have been born during his lifetime so few caught on to the big idea which made him—a small town newspaper editor and homespun philosopher—famous in his way as the Sage of Potato Hill.

He was born in a place where the road widened in Indiana. Wholly by accident when he was 11 years old he lahded in the printing trade, which in those days meant the newspaper business. He had almost no formal schooling.

Printing interested him, and he worked like a dog at it. Because he had something on the ball, of course, he made a name for himself. The point is—maybe it's trite—that he got some place without a public school system, withoid a child labor amendment, without a college education, an FHA loan or even a promise of the more abundant life to brighten his spirit.

Or maybe the point really is that if you have something on the ball these things don't matter, and vice versa.

President Roosevelt's Speech at Chicago Is What All Peace-Loving Nations Have Been Waiting For.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Franklin Roosevelt made at Chicago this week the speech which the whole world has been waiting for several months to hear from the lips of a President of the United States.

The moral force of all mankind has been lined in the crisis of war and revolution a spokesman who could express in explicit and unequivocal terms the philosophy of peace-loving peoples.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech is a masterpiece of statement, forceful without either bombast or threat. It is penetrating and incisive because it is an accurate indictment.

Not since the President's speech at Buenos Aires, defending the principles of democracy and international goodwill, which this correspondent termed the best he had ever delivered, has there been an address of such great international significance.

There will be people who will be apprehensive lest the speech might have to be backed up by physical force some day to make good its declarations, but there are also people who have felt for years that the moral forces of the world in the cause of peace have never been mobilized effectively and that some day such a mobilization by a spokesman who was fearless would awaken the conscience of all civilized nations.

Japan has done a barbaric thing Mr. Roosevelt has not used such exact words, but he has conveyed the same thought. Italy and Germany have despoiled Spain and violated the territorial integrity of that country. Mr. Roosevelt didn't mention Germany or Italy, but his speech plainly condemned them just the same.

There is evidence from a reading of the speech that Mr. Roosevelt pondered a long time before he decided to do it. He had, no doubt, been urged to speak the mind of the American people on the horrors of the far eastern raids on innocent people. In these dispatches, a month ago, reference was made in a critical vein to the fact that the United States government had talked a lot about withdrawing her nationals from war areas and staying in China at their own risk, but had not expressed in forceful tones a real protest against the barbarism of the air raids.

More Than Hoped

But the President's speech is even more than the believers in the world protest idea dared to hope. It was thought Mr. Roosevelt would hesitate to speak boldly and that he would deal with the subject in rather abstract fashion. He has come out plainly and bluntly.

The words of Mr. Roosevelt, however, come with refreshing vigor to a world which had begun to despair of any leadership. Britain and France should be invigorated by the Chicago address. The League of Nations assembly meeting in Geneva should be encouraged by it, too. It is by far the most useful and constructive utterance on international affairs since the late President Wilson's speeches to the allied powers during the European war. Here are two paragraphs from Mr. Roosevelt's speech which will echo around the world.

"Without a declaration of war, and without warning or justification of any kind, civilians, including women and children, are being ruthlessly murdered with bombs from the air. In times of so-called peace, ships are being attacked and sunk by submarines without cause or notice. Nations are fomenting and taking sides in civil warfare in nations that have never done them any harm. Nations claiming freedom for themselves deny it to others.

"Innocent peoples and nations are being cruelly sacrificed to a greed for power and supremacy which is devoid of all sense of justice and humane consideration."

What can be done about it? This is a practical question which will be asked by millions of persons in America who have read the Roosevelt address. The key is to be found in the speech itself:

"The peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy and instability from which there is no escape through mere isolation or neutrality."

No Physical Force

Does this mean war physical force to back up threats of "concerted effort"? Not a bit of it. There are influences on some occasions more powerful than cannon, more devastating than mobilization of armies and navies. Influences which imprint on the dictatorships and autocratic governments of mankind the label of barbarism. In the intercourse of nations, the stigma of barbarism hurts. When peace-loving peoples come to ostracise from their midst the governments which do violence to all humane principles, there is put into motion the forces that ultimately shame nations into a change of policy. If the democracies of the world stick together and put a "moral quarantine" on the leper governments of the world, there will be a sudden realization on the part of peoples living under those governments that world trade, world intercourse and world opinion shun them as the enemies of mankind.

There are remedies. They come out of the spontaneous action of peoples in democratic countries who wish to make these protests effective. A great start has been made. The President of the United States has made vocal the feelings of an outraged humanity. No government can live long in the modern world against the United States, Great Britain and France when working closely together and using not physical force or threats of force but quiet and far-reaching moral forces which have again and again in world history brought civilization to its senses through concerted expression, concerted voice and concerted pressure for the sanctity of treaties and for peace.

The Onus of the Sen. Black Episode Does Not All Fall on Him for Withholding Facts of Klan.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—There is a technique of the authoritarian governments which is being used free-handedly in our republic. That is to subject the people constantly to shock surprises, to follow one measure so rapidly with another that attention is diverted, and, if caught in a mistake, to brazen it out and trust to the swiftly moving kaleidoscope of staged events to cover everything.

Certainly there is a very large body of opinion in this country which was totally unsatisfied with the explanation which Mr. Black gave the other night on the radio—a speech which mixed an admission of guilt with sanctimony and further suppression of material facts—and which is totally unsatisfied with the present status of the whole affair. But there is a feeling that nothing can be done about it. It is not well for democracies to get such a feeling of defeatism. And in this case, there is good reason to believe that something can put it on a cynical basis, and say that the President would not have appointed Mr. Black nor any member of the senate voted for ratification if it had been suspected that the facts—which some of the members undoubtedly knew—would ever be sensationally disclosed. For even Justice Black himself agrees that the disclosure of the facts is not good for the public welfare. The facts and their disclosure are humiliating to Mr. Black, humiliating to the supreme court, humiliating to the senate, and humiliating to the President.

I understand that a scholarly liberal lawyer and a liberal senator agree that there is a way in which the senate may clear itself. The proposal is that the senate shall reopen the case, not for the purpose of reconsideration, but for rescinding its original approval, because its "advice and consent" were secured under misrepresentation. Under the common law and the practice of our whole legal order judgments obtained under misrepresentation can be voided. The very words "advice and consent" have been defined in the seventy-sixth and seventy-seventh papers of "The Federalist," and the supreme court has often made reference to this document as a source in dealing with the constitutional powers of the various branches of the government.

Purpose of Plan

The passages concerned—and common sense as well—make it clear that advice and consent are not being exercised when facts are suppressed. The purpose of securing the ratification of the senate is to have a body different from and independent of the executive pass deliberate judgment on the merits of the candidate, for which judgment essential facts are necessary. And an essential fact is a fact which, if disclosed at the time of consideration, would have made the appointment impossible. Does any one doubt that this affiliation with the Klan is such an

George Remus, styled "king of the bootleggers," shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Imogene Remus, 36, at Cincinnati, as the outcome of a divorce suit she had filed against him shortly after his release from federal penitentiary about a year before. He had served several terms on charges of violating the prohibition laws.

The Ohio Branch of the King's Daughters closed its thirty-fourth annual convention here, electing Mrs. Laura Goodhue of Cleveland president, Mrs. W. F. Pasters of Marion one of the board of trustees, and selecting Newark for the next convention. Mrs. A. R. It was Saturday, Oct. 6, 1917.

A London dispatch reported that the Fourth German army, comprising the kaiser's crack regiments and commanded by Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, had been almost completely shattered by the savage British thrusts in the battle of Flanders. Whole army corps were reported practically annihilated in the great drive Thursday when Field Marshal Haig drove the apex of the Ypres salient forward until it cut six miles into the German front.

Marion county's third contingent of drafted men left for Camp Sherman on the Hocking Valley railroad. It numbered 38 men, making a total of 78 who had gone out of the county's first quota of 92.

One Big, Happy Family

Critics Who Disturb New Deal Harmony Must Go; Kennedy and Frankfurter on Way Out.

More than most men who have occupied the White House, President Roosevelt is believed to reflect the thoughts of his advisers. New dealers have come and gone. This article, republished from The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, tells what to expect of two principal ones—Joe Kennedy, the Wall Street broker, and Prof. Frankfurter of Harvard.

By RICHARD L. STOKES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 — With President Roosevelt invading the territory of western opponents to his supreme court enlargement plan, developments in the capital disclose his increasing resolution to disburden himself of advisers who say no and continue in his entourage men like Secretaries Early and McIntyre and Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, who say yes, and frank "job men" like Thomas G. Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen, who follow orders like soldiers.

It now appears that Joseph P. Kennedy, the "miracle man" first of the securities and exchange commission and today of the shipping board, is slated to follow Raymond Moley, Rexford Guy Tugwell, Gen. Hugh Johnson and many others into the presidential limbo. Kennedy is given to outspoken dissent, on occasion. "Oh," the President is said to have exclaimed recently to a friend who attempted to point out some danger ahead, "you're almost as big a gloom as Joe Kennedy."

But Kennedy's fate, impending or problematic, is considered of small moment in comparison to the complete rupture which, as is just becoming known, has befallen the most famous and fruitful of Mr. Roosevelt's intimacies, that with Prof. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard Law school, for four years regarded as the prime intellectual inspiration of the new deal.

Different at First

Formerly, the two men were in almost constant touch. The professor's overnight visits to the White House were without number. Telephone communication between the two men was a matter of daily routine. It was Frankfurter who recommended to the President such assistants as Corcoran, Cohen, James M. Landis and a dozen others, who, in the professor's honor, were popularly nicknamed "the happy hot dogs." At the time of Gen. Johnson's reurement from the national recovery administration, he described Frankfurter as "the most influential citizen in the United States."

It is now seven months, according to intimates of both men, since Frankfurter has visited Washington, and almost as long since he and the President have talked on the telephone. In other words, the most intimate and potent of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers has ceased to be an intimate and no longer advises, though both would probably deny there has been any lessening of mutual esteem.

One of Many

The disaster that has befallen the Roosevelt-Frankfurter alliance is one more of the numerous casualties attending the supreme court battle. It is well known that the President did not consult the Harvard professor concerning the original bill, which was concocted in secret by Mr. Roosevelt, Attorney General Cummings and Solicitor General Reed. It is not so well known that Prof. Frankfurter was shocked to the core by the proposed statute, and regarded its slurs on age as being cruelly offensive to the most venerable new dealer of them all, Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis, now in his eighty-first year.

Chief Loser

That the chief loss is the President's most observers would confess. Of all the new deal prophets, Frankfurter was esteemed the wisest, sanest and most disinterested. Mr. Roosevelt is today surrounded by intimates who never tell him he is wrong.

The new deal's sweeping triumph in the recent New York primaries, following Postmaster General Farley's report on public opinion throughout the eastern states, and last November's electoral avalanche in the President's favor, have apparently convinced Mr. Roosevelt, perhaps correctly, that he can get away with anything single-handed—including the comedy of his appointment of a former Ku Klux Klansman to reform the United States supreme court.

Over the coffee cups at Lee Otwells the night the big shot of a major industry [illegible] four women holding responsible positions in [illegible] outfit who had been selected by him in a rather strange method. All brunettes, [illegible] is feathered with a streak of white like a [illegible] atoo's plume. One of the most capable [illegible] he knew as an aspiring young man was [illegible] marked. He does not profess to know [illegible] he find any scientific reason, but he [illegible] that every woman so distinguished bears [illegible] brand of genius. Each one in his employ [illegible] paid more than $10,000 a year. He says the first lady U. S. President will be so plumed.

As one of the ardent color hounds I [illegible] cheer, too, for the dash to mufflers this season. I've often thought the muffler, worn just so by the accomplished mufflerist is just as dressy as the monocle. The boys today over from England—such as Tom Webster, [illegible] Buchanan and Wodehouse—have been exploding some screams from the spectrum that [illegible] beau's. Wet grass green speckled with [illegible] dots Schiaparelli pink with streaks of vivid red, yellow and brown in big blocks and coal black with lightning zig-zags of snow white.

Then the young gals everywhere with [illegible] kerchiefs tied around their heads in the manner of the gypsy. This vogue had a mushroom growth—practically over night—and came from the French Riviera. It only takes some Barbara Stanwyck or Gloria Baker to appear at The Stork Club once in such get-ups and the craze is on. Barbara Hutton, before she went completely royal was quite a style setter for young stars. Let her sashay through an aisle to her ringside seat at the Casino in something a bit different and the girls would be popping into the Paradise with a version almost like it next evening. Style thieves, stationed at vantage points, work fast and furiously. Every day at luncheon a group of them will be seen loitering around the entrance of The Colony. Just now they keep their eyes peeled for Mrs. Bob Foy among the matrons and Eleanor Young among the debutantes. They set the pace in their divisions. I don't know who is the style setter for men but until I know positively I continue to get my bearings from William Rhinelander Stewart.

I got to chuckling today over the story Bob Davis used to tell in his Munsey days about a rebuke of an employer to his employe. The head of a law firm had sent a young attorney to interview an important client in a near-by town. Next day he received this. "Have forgotten name of client. Please wire at once." The reply. "The client's name is Whitehead. Your name is Burke."

"T-Men" On War Path

BY WALTER SEIFERT
International News Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—To protect its citizens from the moral and mental deterioration which comes from drug addiction, the United States government is redoubling its efforts to stam out the illicit narcotics trade.

Under direction of Harry J. Anslinger, federal narcotics commissioner, some 300 "T-men," secret service operatives, are ferreting out unlicensed drug peddlers, and doctors who divert legal supplies to illegal use.

Assuming the role of physician as well as detective, the treasury department is constructing a 1,200-patient hospital for addicts at Ft. Worth, Tex., to relieve overcrowded conditions at the Lexington, Ky. unit.

H. J. Anslinger
Chief of "T-Men"

Chief concern of the dope-fighters is to stop illegal importations from the Orient. Cooperating with the League of Nations narcotics committee, the United States has banned all manufacture of the deadly heroin, and reduced the opinum intake to tons of the crude product.

Eight concerns are licensed by the federal government to manufacture opium derivatives. Their output is governed by the legitimate requirements of the medical profession.

All pure narcotics, opium, morphine and heroin, originate in juice of Asiatic opium poppies. Colored red, white or deep purple the flowers are grown in 10 countries, from the Balkans to the eastern edge of Asia.

"T-Men" estimate that there are about [illegible] drug addicts in the country. Addiction cuts in all classes and in all professions. Even a child may acquire it from the milk of an addicted mother.

Crusade in High Gear

Driven mad by the insatiable craving for drugs, victims sometimes steal or kill to get them. This is the reason many of them come into hands of the police, and receive [illegible] year-and-a-day sentences.

Unable to digest food, they become veritable walking skeletons, with sallow skin and blue lips. When deprived of drugs they are highly nervous. Many of them are unable to concentrate on any one subject for more than a moment.

Since Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau ordered the drive against narcotics high gear, 34 states have adopted uniform narcotic laws. With many record seizures already made, the federal government seems justified in its recent announcement that there has been "definite improvement" in the narcotics traffic.

Today in Ohio History

Charles L. Selzer, once a leading Democratic leader in Cleveland, rose from a drug store clerkship to a position in Ohio's legislature.

Born Oct. 6, 1859 at Cleveland, Selzer attended school there and took up his life's career as a drug clerk, then was admitted to the bar, and was mayor of Brooklyn before it became a part of Cleveland. After serving in a number of local capacities, he was elected a representative of Cuyahoga county in the Ohio legislature.

GOAL SET FOR Y. M. C. A. DRIVE

Campaign for Funds Totaling $12,450 Set for Oct. 18-26.

A [illegible] of $12,450 was announced [illegible] for the Marion Y. [illegible] fund campaign to be [illegible] 18-26.

[illegible]ment of the goal was [illegible] Common Pleas Judge [illegible] Young who is president [illegible].

[illegible] George Hildebrandt, [illegible] chairman, and Charles [illegible] chairman of the advance [illegible] division, outlined [illegible] for a citywide canvas. [illegible] already has begun [illegible] met yesterday with a [illegible] men that will work in [illegible] They are Elmer J. [illegible], John J. Stafford, Schoenbrunn, M. L. McDaniel, E. G. Karl Scholl, Arthur A. Van Atta, Kenneth E. Fields, E. Paul Bachman, [illegible] Young, E. L. Herbolsheimer, Harold J. Grigsby, J. C. Woods, [illegible] Eugene Hill and Carl [illegible].

Four General Divisions

Mr. Hildebrandt will organize four general canvassing divisions of 25 men each. Two leaders have been named for each division. They are Harold Carroll-Robert Bush, Elmer Weimer-Rev. E. A. Lehman, Arden J. Millisor-Homer D. Cole and Frank Kette-Homer Waddell. The leaders are enrolling team captains and will meet with them at the Y. M. C. A. Friday noon.

As preliminary campaign work got under way, Judge Young issued an appeal for the community to support the Y. M. C. A. program.

"For 44 years," he said, "the Marion Young Men's Christian association has ministered to the youth of our city. It has held before young manhood and boyhood high ideals of life and conduct.

Program Outlined

"It has provided a program for physical development, opportunities for friendship and the cultivation of their minds and in cooperation with the churches, has carefully guided men and boys in their religious life.

"Today the Association faces the responsibilities of helping youth to adjust their living to a rapidly changing world. Recognizing that their greatest need is moral and spiritual guidance, we wish to make still more vital our program in their behalf. These are difficult days for youth. Life is swifter, restraints fewer, temptations are more subtle, opportunities for placement in the world more elusive than ever.

"That is why the work of your Young Men's Christian Association in building character, planning intelligent use of leisure and helping our young people to get started right is so important.

"The public-spirited men and women of Marion have always loyally supported this vital community work. We know they will again. So we ask their personal cooperation now."

PLAYGROUND GROUP ACTIVE YESTERDAY

"Touch" Football Games Feature Tuesday Program.

A playground organization has been formed at the Olney Avenue school under direction of the school recreation program in which the WPA, NYA and Y. M. C. A. are cooperating. To date, seven schools have organizations serving pupils under seventh grade age and one organization at Central Junior high for seventh grade students.

Second round games of "touch" football were played last night. Silver Street pupils defeated a squad from Oakland school, 22 to 0, while North Main Street vs. Glenwood and Oak Street vs. Mark Street games ended in scoreless ties.

Boys are being taught the principles of football in the "touch" game, the only difference from regular grid play being that touching the ball carrier with both hands constitutes a tackle, thus reducing possibility of injuries.

Players are drilled on football rules and many of them are studying in preparation to try out for junior high school football in later years.

LUTHERAN CHURCH CLASS ENTERTAINED

Miss Mary Lodwig of Kennedy court was hostess last night to the Ever Ready class of the Emanuel Lutheran church. Miss Marguerite Barkley conducted devotions preceding a business session in charge of the president, Miss Mary Kathryn Alheit. A program consisted of a piano selection by Miss Zella Mae Willoughby, and a story, "Tryphosa the Second" by Miss Mary Ellen Sycks. Contest honors were won by Miss Barkley and Miss Sycks. Refreshments were served at a long table lighted by pumpkin faces. Guests were Misses Marianna McGee and Dorothy De-Wees. A meeting will be held Nov. 2 with Miss Sycks of South Seffner avenue.

OFFICERS' REPORTS MARK K. D. MEETING

the W. C. T. U. groups of the city have been invited to join the King's Daughters for the occasion, as a courtesy to the speaker who is nationally known in both organizations. The address will be followed by an informal reception in the church parlors.

A social event of the three-day meeting was a banquet last night at which Earl N. Hale, Y. M. C. A. secretary, was a guest speaker.

The forthcoming election and tonight's program brought additional delegates and visitors here for the second day's session. Registered delegates and guests at noon today numbered 254 and these, combined with the attenders magazine, "Silver Cross." Completing the afternoon schedule will be reports on Maplecrest, the King's Daughters home for girls at Bucyrus, by Mrs. Holycross, secretary, and Miss Sara Walden, matron of the home.

Candidates for the respective state offices will be placed on the bulletin board by the tellers at the close of this afternoon's session.

The election of officers will be held Thursday morning.

260 at Opening Banquet

Covers were placed for approximately 260 delegates, guests and hostesses at the banquet last evening, which was one of two social affairs scheduled on the three-day program. Thursday afternoon, following the closing session, the women will motor to Maplecrest in Bucyrus for tea.

Mrs. E. E. Parish of Marion presided as toastmistress, presenting the program features in rhyme. Bowls of fall flowers, and purple plaques holding silver circles from which were suspended silver Maltese crosses, carried out a decorative note for the three long tables laid in the recreation rooms and the smaller tables arranged in the parlors. The decorations were repeated on the table at which were seated Mrs. Eley, Mrs. Crow and her associate officers. At the rear of the officers' table was a large lighted cross in purple and silver. Favors were miniature dolls in purple and white bearing the King's Daughters' standard. Grace was spoken by Mrs. Eley. Music for the dinner hour was furnished by a group of young musicians from the First Presbyterian Sunday school and Harding high school orchestras.

In cleverly worded original verse Mrs. Parish presented Mrs. Eley, Mrs. Crow, Miss Zona L. Scott of Cleveland, first vice president and Bible study chairman, Mrs. F. A. Rice of Cleveland, second vice president and junior chairman, Mrs. Edgar Holycross of Marysville, Mrs. C. Fred Vollmer of Bucyrus, treasurer, and Mrs. A. A. Gottschall of Toledo, Mrs. Lucy Van Kirk of Granville, Mrs. N. S. Kellogg of Medina, Mrs. R. B. Jones of Clyde, and Mrs. R. Dwight Dyar of Lowell, trustees.

Entertainment Features

Mrs. Raymond Acker and Mrs. Clara Campbell, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Robert Y. Smith, sang two numbers, "In the Garden of Tomorrow" and "I Passed by Your Window." A play written by Miss Ellen Brady of Fremont and titled "An Average Circle Meeting," was presented by Mrs. K. D. Brintlinger, Mrs. Hobart Davis, Mrs. Clarence W. Cox, Mrs. H. G. Fisher, Mrs. Arthur Moore, Mrs. J. W. Fouke, Miss Ellen A. Brady, Mrs. Lawrence Carroll, Mrs. A. W. Shlesinger, Mrs. Kenneth Sale and Mrs. Fred Bode, all of Fremont. In her introduction the author explained the play was a meeting of the "Busy Bees" circle, and the purpose of the play to prove that "every one can find a round on which to work, whether a modern or a grandmother." The setting, she said, was any time and anywhere.

Interesting incidents in the lives of the presidents of the United States and their wives and vivid word pictures of their personalities and characteristics were given by Mr. Hale in his talk on the "Presidents and Their Wives." As a hobby, Mr. Hale has done a great deal of research in collecting material for his study and his talk was most interesting both from a character study and educational standpoint. He described the present period of "debunking" as a period when writers say unkind and uncharitable things of those high in public places. "If anyone will take the time to read the lives of the presidents they will see that 'gossip' has been both unchristian and unkind," he said.

No "Standardization"

The presidents of the United States have not been standardized, and a study of them and their wives is most interesting and the impressions they make are varied, he told his audience. "There has been no typical president and no typical first lady," he said, and called attention to the fact that there is only one ex-president living and seven ex-president's wives.

Martha Custis brought to the White House not only wealth but all the qualities of an ideal wife, he brought out. Abigail Adams not only was the wife of a president but also the mother of one; she never attended school because of ill health but was known as the most brilliant of first ladies, having had the advantages of culture and education in the home. He described Dolly Madison as the most remarkable wife of a president, and Mrs. Warren G. Harding as the most outstanding business woman ever to reign in the White House. Presidents Buchanan and Cleveland were bachelors when they took up their residence in the White House and Cleveland married while there. Andrew Jackson, he said, was the most misunderstood president, and McKinley's name was ever linked with courtesy. President Harding, he said, was the first president to introduce the budget system and will long be remembered for having called the disarmament conference of 1921. "A study of the lives of the presidents and their wives," he said in closing, "gives us a better understanding and appreciation of our country." Miss Blanche Work of Cleveland closed the session with prayer.

Activities Reviewed

A review of the year's work was presented in the various reports presented by county presidents and city union leaders at the session yesterday afternoon. Greetings from other states were read, including Texas and South Carolina. Greetings also were received from Mrs. Laura S. Goodhue, a past president of the Ohio branch and now secretary of the International organization with headquarters in New York City.

Benefit luncheons, tag days, rummage sales, bazaars, garden parties, bake sales were among the popular methods used by the women for raising money for the various activities throughout the year, the reports brought out. Supplying wheel chairs for invalids, clothing for needy families, assisting boys and girls through school by providing clothing and finances, supporting wards in hospitals and assisting financially and with clothing in times of disasters are among the activities carried on by the women.

The invocation yesterday afternoon was spoken by Dr. Edward T. Waring, pastor of Epworth M. E. church. Mrs. W. F. Pasters of Marion, welcomed the visitors and the response was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Helmer of Cleveland. Mrs. William Ackerman, Jr., organist, played "Jesus Shall Reign," Stultz, "Meditation," Poole and "Andante," by Harris.

A teething ring and nursing bottle for infants have been combined by an inventor in a device that can be suspended at the correct angle for use from a cradle or crib.

Trio Injured as Auto Crashes Into Pole on Prospect Road.

A Marion couple and their 14-months-old baby were injured seriously when their automobile left the highway south of Marion on the Prospect road at 8 o'clock last night as the driver swung sharply to avoid hitting another car.

Mrs. Richard N. Tuttle, 21, of 179 Davids street suffered a fracture of the left jaw, an ankle sprain and cuts on the face. She remained at City hospital today for treatment. Her husband suffered a painful leg bruise and their infant son, Robert, suffered a forehead cut that required several stitches to close.

Tuttle told state highway patrolmen who investigated the mishap he was driving behind another car as it suddenly made a left turn. He said he swung sharply to the right to avoid hitting the other automobile, and that his car left the highway and struck a telephone pole. Damage to the automobile was estimated at $50.

Name of the driver in the automobile ahead of Tuttle was not learned. Tuttle is employed at the Montgomery Ward & Co. store.

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH TERMED HISTORICAL

Seen Taking Initiative in International Efforts To Avert World War.

BY DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—President Roosevelt's peace speech at Chicago may find a place in history as one of the great individual contributions of this generation to world-sanity, coming as it does at the time of a crisis which is threatening many nations.

Everything depends, of course, on the manner in which Mr. Roosevelt's words are backed up.

Certainly he didn't make this sensational speech merely to reiterate that graphic three-word sentence "I hate war." It could scarcely be an empty gesture.

One thing emerges fairly clear—the President has assumed the leadership among international statesmen in the campaign against war. In the language of his revered cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, his hat is in the ring.

Pending further developments, it is fair to say that President Roosevelt may have gone a long way toward providing the League of Nations with the teeth that Woodrow Wilson tried to give it but failed.

The league has encountered failure after failure in its efforts to stop wars, and its members have claimed that its weakness lay in the aloofness of America.

Mr. Roosevelt hasn't joined the league now, but he would appear to have placed behind it a moral force so tremendous as to insure respect from would-be offenders.

By the same token he has, on paper, lined the United States up solidly with all peace efforts being made by individual nations like Britain.

Speaking of Great Britain, warmongering nations and those actually engaged in hostilities, cannot help being reminded that the United States and Britain together represent a force, economic and military, that could face the rest of the world with assurance if necessary.

The most sensational aspect of the President's speech lay in the fact that he stepped clear off the beaten path of diplomacy when, in his castigation of warring countries, he virtually named them.

The bluntness of his language probably was unprecedented for one in his position.

London bus companies are using a vehicle carrying mechanism that records distances covered and the clearance of tree limbs and overhead bridges on proposed new routes.

Mrs. Gladys Arter was named delegate and Mrs. Dallas Harruff alternate to the state P.-T. A. convention in Cleveland, Oct. 20-21-22, at a meeting of Greenwood P.-T. A. yesterday afternoon at the school. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Arter, president.

A. by Miss Alice Blake; a report on the school of instruction held recently here by Mrs. Orcutt and Mrs. Arter; introduction of the teachers by Mrs. Nellie B. Irey. A social hour in charge of the sixth grade followed. The fifth grade had the most mothers present.

Supplying Linens for Nursery Pet Project of Circle

Supplying linens for the Marion City hospital nursery is the pet project of the In-As-Much circle of the King's Daughters, one of the hostess circles at the three-day state convention which opened here today.

Women of the circle have sewn miles of cloth into bands squares, gowns, sheets shirts and crib pads for the nursery

The nursery for the last several months has been one of the busiest rooms in the hospital, and its constant use makes a heavy demand on the circle

From Jan. 1 to Sept 1 of this year the nursery was home to 145 babies and in September 22 new arrivals kept the room in a constant dither of activity

The pink and white room has accommodations for eight babies and there have been times recently when the capacity was taxed Sunday there were seven babies snoozing away there Two babies and their mothers went home during the day, but it was expected the stork would increase the census to six by today.

Women of the circle meet once a month to sew for the nursery.

Mrs A M Hamilton, president of the circle this year, has appointed a work committee to take charge of the supplying of the nursery linens.

On the committee are Mrs W O Nippert, chairman, Mrs J M Hamilton and Mrs Louise Barnthouse, assistant chairman. Mrs C H Rinehart Mrs H L Gurley, Mrs. P H Taylor, Mrs W F Thew and Mrs Guy Hawkins

New individual beds, purchased by the hospital, are latest equipment in the nursery, which is located on the second floor

King's Daughters Head Active Over Long Period

International President in Organization Since Childhood, She Relates at State Meeting Here.

"I can't remember a time when I wasn't in King's Daughters work," was the response of Mrs Henry S. Eley of Suffolk, Va., president of the International Order of The King's Daughters and Sons, Inc., to the query "When did you become active in the work of the organization?"

Here as a guest of honor at the forty-fourth annual convention of the Ohio Branch of the organization, the international president not only brings the inspiration of her years of study and association in King's Daughters work, but also a charming and vivid personality which places her in the foremost ranks of leaders in the internation affairs of the women of today.

First Visit To Marion

The convention marks Mrs. Eley's first visit to Marion and her fifth visit to Ohio. She attended conventions at Newark and Granville, and two in Columbus.

Mrs. Eley's work in King's Daughters circle dates back to her childhood She served as leader of the Silver Cross circle of Suffolk, Va., for 25 years, and was president and council member of the Virginia Branch for 19 years. Her entrance into international activities was 12 years ago when she was elected first vice president of the international order in California. She was chosen head of the international organization in May of 1936 in California, and will preside for the next convention to be held in Detroit in June of next year. Since going into international activities Mrs Eley has written Bible Lessons for the International Silver Cross magazine and more recently has written a book on "Bible Characters and Great Bible Cities"

Range of Activities

Her activities center on church, religious and welfare work. She also is an active club woman, having served as president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs for two terms, was a director of the state board for two terms, and for a number of years was president of the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's clubs She founded and served as editor of the "Virginia Clubwoman" for several years

An ardent prohibitionist Mrs. Eley is active in the work of the Women's Christian Temperance union. She also is a member of the board of the new Tidewater hospital at Tidewater, Va. which will be dedicated in the near future, and is a member of the Southern Women's Association for the Prevention of Lynching, representing her native state on the board. She is president of the Suffolk W C T U., is active in the work for the betterment of the Negro race, and a member of the Inter-Racial Committee of Virginia, an organization interested in the welfare of colored people.

Attended Other Conventions

Mrs Eley came to Marion from a tour of Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire where she attended state conventions. Prior to that she had been to the Pacific coast in the interest of King's Daughters work. She will go to Steubenville Thursday evening or Friday morning, and from there her work will take her to Mississippi

The work in Ohio is most encouraging, she says, and she is enthusiastic in her praise of the progress being made by the state and individual circles She placed last night's banquet attendance among the largest she has seen at any convention throughout the country.

Mrs Eley says she has "one husband and one son" and her hobbies are motoring and reading

450 Hear Vivid Review of Roberts Novel by Mrs. Head

BY MARIE HOLLY

ABOUT the most pleasant way of keeping up with current literature is to hear one of Mrs Depew Head's book reviews, such a one as she gave of Kenneth Roberts' "Northwest Passage" last evening at the Central Christian church

The appearance of the Columbus woman, who used to live in Marion and take such an active part in women's affairs here, marked the opening of the 1937-38 season of the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs.

That Mrs. Head's reviews are "something to hear" was evidenced in last evening's attendance of approximately 450 members of the federation, patronesses and guests—the guests including a fair representation of men

Her comments about a book she has chosen to review are exciting enough to arouse a reader's interest if she didn't go on to hit the high spots of the story, and last night was no exception. This summer, while attending the Breadloaf Writers' school in the Green mountains, she permeated herself with the setting of Roberts' historical novel by following "The War Trail of the Nation," beginning at Saratoga, going on to Fort Ticonderoga, following Lake Champlain to Crown Point and then going to Montreal

"Three nations battled for its supremacy," she said of the area, "France, England and America, and it is a field of triumph, glory and disaster."

Book Praised

Roberts' novel she termed "a new landmark," of "clear, mobile style with the rare gift of making the past come alive In this respect has no equal," she said. After briefly tracing Roberts' career after leaving Cornell and including his "Arundel" which was published in 1930 she praised "Northwest Passage" for its valuable and useful chronicling of pre-Revolutionary days when there were no maps; for its picture of eighteenth century London; for its presentation of the central figure, Major Robert Rogers; for its fine assortment of types among the minor characters; for the manner of telling the story; for its description of the taking of St. Francis, which she said she believed "unequalled in American prose," "a splendid sequence of adventure without a single break."

She termed Roberts' handling of the character unusual in that "seldom does an author dare to paint such a hero and then show him so defeated and defiled."

Mrs. Head spoke of the many lives lost in the struggle to find a "northwest passage" to the east, and of Roberts' dedication of his book to all men who seek their own "northwest passage" in realization of their own dreams.

Chain of Events Reviewed

Viridiy Mrs Head drew the panorama of "Northwest Passage" from its opening with Langdon Towne, a New England youth with an ambition to paint Indians, to its closing chapters of the Revolution and Rogers' part in it. She mentioned the great pains of the author to present historical facts heretofore unpublished, his linking of the story with the beginning of the unrest among the colonies, and his naming of the character Langdon Towne after Governor George Langdon who administered the oath of office to George Washington.

The first part of the book deals with Rogers' Rangers and is climaxed by the taking of St. Francis, and Roberts' description of this history-making episode she termed "matchless" and "one of the immortal tales of American history and here for the first time in history it lives."

Critics disagree on the second part of the 700-page book, she said, but in her opinion there is little difference in the quality. The second part takes Towne and Rogers to London, where Towne's romance begins and Rogers is finally commissioned to return to America and find the "northwest passage" She praised Roberts' description of London, written with the same touch of mastery as his description of America. Rogers' attempt to find the passage is balked on every side by jealous interests, and ends disastrously for him, but the narrator, Towne, again finds him in a London prison and later hears of his adventuring in Algiers.

Other Books Mentioned

Preceding her review Mrs Head recommended to the women three humorous books, "A Genius In the Family," the story of Percy Maxim as told by his son, "Life With Mother," by the late Clarence Day, and "The Education of Hyman Kaplan" by Leonard Q Ross, and an Loon's new "History of the Arts," "the best book I have ever found for the layman on the arts"

Preceding each of her forthcoming reviews Mrs Head will give a brief resume of current books of interest, she announced

Mrs. Everett B. Grigsby president of the federation greeted the guests and short talks were given by Miss Clara Kowalke, patroness chairman, who announced that Dec. 1 has been set as the deadline for reaching the goal of 500 patronesses, and Miss Pansy K. Rauhauser, program chairman, who announced four additional book reviews by Mrs Head and two lectures, one in January by an expert on Spode China, and another in April by Dr Sherwood Eddy.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE . . .
Without Calomel — And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make every feel "up and up" Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. THE CHARACTERS

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair, meets a young man at a party.

David drives her home, comes to be crushed the party and learns he is an automobile salesman. He is an expert hair and a dog.

Honey, Nina's plump, youthful mother, brings home a new husband unannounced.

Richard, Nina's stepfather.

Geraldine, Nina's closest friend.

CHAPTER THREE

A Drink To the Bride

"It's all right, I'm happy to have Richard drew Honey to her in a lovely sweet way.

Something that had felt all taut and constricted—her heart maybe relaxed in Nina's breast.

Honey was saying, "And I have my prettiest last name."

"What is it, darling?"

"Challoner."

"Oh, my yes. It's very, very... something, isn't it? 'Richard Challoner.' I like it and 'Honey Challoner,' too."

They were still standing in a little huddle in the upstairs hall.

"Would you two grinning things mind coming in and giving me a little data?"

But when the three of them were settled in a row, with Nina in the middle, on Honey's sinky, yellow-strewn couch, it appeared that there was very little data to give out.

They had met at a dinner party given for Honey, in Chicago, by Ellen Starrees, her hostess. They had fallen in love, immediately, and had been unable to figure out any reason why they should wait to do something about it.

"Just one of those things," murmured Nina, smiling.

But she thought: "Oh, no. No reason at all....only me; and the question of whether they're really suited to each other; and the difference in their ages (he must be at least 10 years younger than Honey), and a few thousand other little items to be considered...."

Richard's 'Nervousness'

"You do think it's fun, our having done it and surprised you, don't you, darling?" Was there a pleading look in Honey's blue eyes? Did she know she had been bad?

"I do," answered Nina, promptly. "When did—it, happen?" It hurt her terribly to think of her mother standing somewhere, saying: "I do," without her....giving away the whole rest of her life to a stranger.

"Day before yesterday."

"And you'll be going away now for a while, I suppose" Suddenly, a terrible thought struck her. "Look here, you two aren't going to live in Chicago, are you?"

Richard Challoner said, quickly: "No, my dear, I should have told you that right off. I'm not going to take your mother away from you...only for a few weeks."

"Whew!" Nina breathed again. "I fell better. Let's have a drink on this." She crossed over to a table, lifted the glass top and began to do things to the bottles and glasses.

Richard came to help her.

"Of course I know that I don't intend to beat Honey, or make her miserable, but you have no way of knowing it. You're being a marvelous sport, and I certainly appreciate it....I may as well confess that I was terribly nervous."

That was his first—speech. He hadn't been nervous at all; eager to make a good impression, certainly...a little amused perhaps, but never nervous.

Nina felt inclined to dislike him for the insincerity, and as he bent over Honey with her glass, she looked at him critically, for the first time. Sleek, dark hair and eyes, and a thin line of moustache on his upper lip...A deep chest and broad shoulders, covered by an almost too-well-tailored blue suit...Custom made shoes. Nina thought she has never seen anybody more sure of himself, who looked more as though he would know the right thing to do in any conceivable situation...And then she smiled, because he had said the right thing after all. He had put on a little show for Honey, just as she, Nina, had been doing.

"Nervous! Isn't he ridiculous, Nina? How could you help adoring him?"

"I do believe your mother is prejudiced."

And Honey beamed.

"Well, don't be too sure of me, young fella!" said Nina. "I'm only taking you under advisement, understand, and the first black and blue mark on Honey...pht! you go out on your ear!" She raised her brandy. "Here's to the bride."

Her glass tinkled in the open fireplace, and a second after, Richard's.

Honey looked so radiant, and young that it was absurd to have her for a mother.

She drank to her new husband, missed the fireplace with her glass and knocked the ear off a china cat on the sea-green taffeta cushion by the hearth. After Richard had found it and had assured her that it could be glued on again...Nina suggested bed.

Nina's Room

"It's after five, Honey. You don't look it, but you must be dead, darling. There's all tomorrow to talk in...You two run along. I'll lock up."

"She's right, sweetheart," said Richard. "You've had a big day," and he took his wife's two little white hands and pulled her up off the low couch...Honey never could get up alone.

Nina kissed her mother and whispered a "God bless you," as her father used to do, and as she had done ever since he died: and then she felt her hand in Richard's firm clasp, for a minute.

"Goodnight...my dears," and she ran out and down the stairs partly because she had to put out the lights on the first floor, but mostly because she couldn't bear to see her mother and Richard go down the hall and into the big double room that Honey had shared with daddy.

But when she had touched all the switches, and bolted the front door, she had to come up again.

Nina looked at Richard Challoner, critically, for the first time as he bent over Honey.

Her own room was on the third floor; and as she passed her mother's, she heard Honey saying: "Do you, Richard?" and then his low laugh.

Ten minutes later Nina lay in her own bed.

She had the large front room over the library. Two windows faced north on 74th street; the hangings were of heavy satin. At one window they were all draped over to the left side and caught up rather high; at the other, they were swirled to the right. One was peach and one was brown. The walls were the delicate color of the inside of a cockle shell. There was not too much furniture; some of it was satinwood, and some of it was painted—quite beautifully, the same shade as the walls, with designs of deeper peach, and brown, and touches of soft green.

In a way, it was a decorator's room—but not really, for Nina had done it herself.

Nina dreams of her father and his charge to her, tomorrow.

DOROTHY THOMPSON VIEWS TOPICS OF DAY

latter would certainly pave the way for abuses. Rescinding could only be proposed on the basis of indisputable evidence to prove that material facts had been withheld. And it is an unquestioned fact that, when Mr. Black's appointment as being discussed statements were made and published denying any affiliation between him and the Ku Klux Klan. In fact, these denials were so emphatic that the senate decided not to hold subcommittee hearings on this issue, as had been proposed.

The papers of the Federalist to which I have referred justify the necessity of the senate's approval, as a check to prevent the executive from bringing forward any candidate whose "only merit was ...of being in some way personally allied to him, or of possessing the necessary insignificance and pliancy of his (the executive's) pleasure." The passage makes clear that the whole purpose of senatorial ratification is to provide a body for carefully investigating the appointees of the President to the supreme court. It is clear that in this case the investigation was not thorough, because the Senate was falsely informed. There is, therefore, here, a case of moral fraud, on which the senate can declare a misconsent.

Senate Should Act

It is the belief of this column that the senate should so declare, and thereby greatly enhance its own moral prestige, remove an onus from the President, and show "a decent respect for the opinion of mankind," which Jefferson, at least, felt was due even in the midst of revolution.

In view of all the facts there is not a wing of public opinion in this country that does not find with this application, among the various and unscrupulous methods employed, [illegible]

Roosevelt to appoint constitutional conservatives to the court. They have expected, and they still expect, that under this administration vacancies will be filled by men who share Justice Stone's view of the Constitution, which is to give all legislation passed by congress the benefit of every possible doubt.

But they also expect to see men appointed whose record is clean of any suspicion of fraud and of any alliance, at any time, with organized activities in basic conflict with the Bill of Rights.

Mr. Black's statement does not clear the President nor does it clear the senate of having acted with laxity. On the contrary, it involves them in the tacit acceptance of fraudulence if they suffer the matter to drop. If they try to cover it over, to let it drop, they will neither help the cause of liberalism nor the prestige of democratic government.

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbraith collection of Ohio histories written for The Associated Press.)

AFTER SIR PHILIP SIDNEY

Sidney, the seat of Shelby county, was named after Sir Philip Sidney, English writer and soldier. The original site was a cornfield of James Starrett. The city was laid out to be the county seat by order of the court and it was probably the judge of this court who chose the name. Sir Philip Sidney was a confidential advisor to Queen Elizabeth through many years and by her his learning and wisdom was highly esteemed. He was fortunate in never having fallen under suspicion and disfavor of this remarkable woman of many moods. He died in 1586, the victim of a wound received at the battle of Sutphen.
